

Why,
Why,
Why?

STROUDSBURG — Pocono Record reporter Bert Walter and photographer Rod MacLeod visited Stroudsburg's Main St. Wednesday in the wake of the shooting to get immediate and unrehearsed reaction from local residents.

Question: What is your reaction to the attempted assassination of Senator Robert F. Kennedy?
Time: 2:30 p.m.
Place: Main Street, Stroudsburg.

Marsh Blaker

Mrs. Eugene Marsh, 59 E. Broad St., East Stroudsburg: "I was shocked. I really was. When I was called between 7 a.m. and 8 a.m. by a neighbor I turned on the TV. I just couldn't get over it that this could happen in our country. It's terrible."

Mrs. Alexander Blaker, 500 Lindberg Ave., Stroudsburg: "What can the reaction be? It's a shock, a terrible shock. You feel like you're not safe in the streets anymore. This should show that the gun laws should be a lot tighter than they are."

E. Edwards Bosman

Mrs. E. Edwards, 19 S. Eighth St., Stroudsburg: "I think it was a terrible thing. That's all I can say. I heard about it when I turned on the television this morning for the 'Today' show. It's always been my thought that guns should be restricted."

Miss Linda Bosman, 102 Smith St., East Stroudsburg: "I just think it's a horrible thing to happen, especially in a nation that's supposed to be the land of the free."

Romascavage Dymond

Ed Romascavage, Stroudsburg R.D. 5: "I was shocked like most people. Guys like that should be put away. I heard about it at 4:30 this morning. My wife had a baby this morning, that's how I found out. It's a tragedy."

Douglas Dymond, 13 Oakland Ave., East Stroudsburg: "Shocked. Terrible shock. This country — I don't know what's becoming of this country."

J. Edwards Behler

John H. Edwards, Orlando, Fla.: "I don't know how this could happen. All the good people are getting knocked out and the bad living. I don't believe what happened will harm his undertakings. He'll keep right on because the people are behind him."

John Behler, 80 Elk St., East Stroudsburg: "I really don't know what to say. I just couldn't believe it."

Reese Stone

Mrs. Florence Reese, Mountainhome: "I'm horrified. I turned the television set on this morning. Just horror — it's terrible."

Mrs. Barbara Stone, Stroudsburg R.D. 2: "I think it's terrible. My husband was on his way to work and he heard it on the car radio. He shouted for me to turn the radio on. I was house cleaning and had the radio blasting all morning."

Sen. Kennedy fights for life; police charge Jordanian, 24

Suspect branded anti-semitic

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sirhan Bishara Sirhan, 24, is a Jordanian who hates Jews and who fell from a horse recently trying to become a jockey, those who knew him said Wednesday.

Sirhan was identified by Los Angeles police as the man who gunned down Sen. Robert F. Kennedy moments after the senator thanked supporters for his California primary election victory over Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy.

He "may have been inflamed" by a statement from Sen. Robert Kennedy during a televised campaign debate Saturday night, said a New York committee on American-Arab relations.

During the debate with McCarthy, Kennedy said the United States should supply jets to Israel.

"It is this disrespect for the human Arab persons which brings about this kind of violence," said Dr. Mohammad T. Mehdi, secretary-general of the Action Committee on American-Arab Relations.

Under maximum security guard in a hospital ward at the Los Angeles County Central Jail, Sirhan kept mum about the shooting. Police said he is the only suspect.

He was hospitalized with a broken index finger and sprained left ankle suffered in the melee of his capture, said an official source at the jail.

"No. No," sobbed Sirhan's mother, Mary, when she learned one of her five sons was arrested.

A neighbor in suburban Pasadena, Marguerite Daugherty, said Mrs. Sirhan told her that her son fell from a horse recently on a ranch and "since then I can't talk to him."

"Isn't it terrible?" Mrs. Daugherty remarked.

"Yes," she said Mrs. Sirhan replied. "It's too awful to think about."

"All I know is he is a nice kid," said Sirhan in a radio interview. He identified himself as a brother of the accused man.

"I mean this is really something that shook me up that my brother would do such things. I don't think so. I don't think that he would pay attention to such things even."

"When there was trouble between Jordan and Israel, he would become inflamed," said John Shear, who worked with the prisoner at Hollywood Park race track.

"Since I wasn't interested in politics I would not discuss it," said Shear, an assistant trainer. "But he was violently pro-Jordan and anti-Israeli."

"He wanted to be a jockey and the people around the track advised him to get a job on a farm where he could exercise horses and learn to ride."

Violence stalking America

NEW YORK (AP) — Violence stalks through American public life like a poison shadow: waiting, waiting and then striking. Lincoln, Garfield, McKinley, Medgar Evers, Malcolm X, Kennedy, King, and now, another Kennedy.

With the shooting of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy Wednesday psychiatrists saw violence shown once again as coming closer to the surface of American life.

"Once the pattern of behavior is established, it tends to be repeated," said Dr. John Spiegel, director of the Center for the Study of Violence at Brandeis University.

"It is in the public mind that this kind of thing can be done. The pattern was set with Lincoln. And it always seems to be with a gun."

The gun. It is not an American invention but has long been an American institution.

"The populace as a whole is conditioned to expect violence," said Spiegel. "Behind this is America's gun fetish and the notion that a gun can be used to solve conflict. It begins with children, acting out with guns."

And it began long ago.

U.S. bombing still issue with Hanoi

PARIS (AP) — North Vietnam parried an American probe seeking a break in the deadlock in the peace talks Wednesday and left the impression it will hold out until the United States surrenders on the issue of halting its air attacks.

At the request of the North Vietnamese delegation the sessions were recessed until next Wednesday, the longest gap thus far.

The indications now seemed otherwise, as if Hanoi is prepared to hold out as long as necessary for a U.S. retreat on the issue.

RFK's victory prize — bullet lodged in head

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy captured California's 174 Democratic convention votes in his drive for the presidency but moments after he claimed victory Wednesday he was shot and critically wounded.

It was a tragic climax to a hectic election night that saw U.S. Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel unseated after 15 years by Max Rafferty, state superintendent of public instruction.

Adding to the confusing night were breakdowns and human errors in the vote count as the state used a variety of new electronic devices to tally votes. More than half the state's 8-million voters used electronic devices for the first time.

Sen. Eugene McCarthy, Kennedy's chief rival for the Democratic nomination, piled up a slight lead early in the counting.

But as Los Angeles and other Southern California returns began to flow in McCarthy's lead melted fast. There was exceptionally heavy voting in Southern California populous Negro and Mexican-American districts. All went strongly for Kennedy.

National leaders grasp for words

WASHINGTON (AP) — Stunned nation and a shocked President Johnson prayed Wednesday for Sen. Robert F. Kennedy and for the country where violence and political assassination have become so commonplace.

"There are no words equal to the horror of this tragedy," Johnson said shortly after Kennedy was critically wounded by a hail of bullets fired in a Los Angeles hotel. Five other persons were less seriously hurt.

"Our thoughts and our prayers are with Sen. Kennedy, his family and the other victims," the President said. "All America prays for his recovery. We also pray that divisiveness and violence be driven from the hearts of men everywhere."

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, one of Kennedy's two rivals for the Democratic presidential nomination, said, "Our hopes and prayers are with Sen. Kennedy and those others who have been the victims of this dreadful act of violence."

President Johnson kept in touch with Kennedy's situation.

Lack of progress seen as bad sign

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy remained in extremely critical condition Wednesday, failing to show any improvement 12 hours after surgeons removed from his brain all but a fragment of a bullet police said was fired by a mysterious young gunman with a Jordanian heritage.

"Sen. Kennedy's condition is still described as extremely critical as to life," the senator's press secretary, Frank Mankiewicz, told newsmen.

"The team of physicians attending Sen. Robert Kennedy," Mankiewicz said in a brief statement, "is concerned over his continuing failure to show improvement during the post-operative period."

But the press aide, answering questions some 17 hours after Kennedy was cut down in a Los Angeles hotel, would not say Kennedy's condition is deteriorating.

"We felt it would be appropriate at this point," he said, "to stress that the critical condition related to survival during this period as well as to the period beyond."

Mankiewicz said although "there might have been some change," he thought Kennedy's life signs — pulse, breathing, blood pressure — were still good.

Earlier, Kennedy underwent a series of medical tests at Good Samaritan Hospital. Then, too, they showed no measurable improvement.

The man accused of the shooting was captured on the spot, and identified hours later as Sirhan Bishara Sirhan, 24, a Jordanian native of Jerusalem, who has lived in nearby Pasadena, Calif., since boyhood.

A team of brain surgeons operated for 3 hours and 40 minutes, striving to save the life of the New York senator, brother of the assassinated President John F. Kennedy. Robert was gunned down at the moment of his greatest victory in the California primary as he campaigned for the White House.

His wife, Ethel, kept vigil in a hospital room near that in which her wounded 42-year-old husband was under intensive care at Good Samaritan Hospital.

The shots fired into Kennedy's head signaled a halt to the presidential campaign. The extent of the moratorium was pronounced by Blair Clark, campaign manager of Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, who said he had wired all his headquarters: "Close up."

Police identified the five as William Weisel, 30; Ira Goldstein, 19; Elizabeth Evans, 43; Irwin Stroll, 17, and Paul Schrade, 43. All but Weisel, a Washington, D.C., resident, are from the Los Angeles area.

Damage to brain possible

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A grim possibility that Sen. Robert F. Kennedy might face an indefinite life of limited usefulness if he survives an assassin's bullet emerged Wednesday after first reports on the extent of brain damage.

Dr. John D. French, director of the Brain Research Institute at the University of California at Los Angeles, said in an interview that reports of injury to the central part of the brain raised grave doubts about Kennedy's recovery.

In New York, Dr. Lawrence Pool, Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center neurosurgeon, said Dr. Henry Cuneo, one of the men who operated on Kennedy, had authorized him to give this version of the injury:

"There was evidently serious damage to the cerebellum, the part of the brain on the extreme back of the head, on the right side; also to part of the right cerebral hemisphere, and also to the mid-brain, which is the main cable connecting the brain itself with all the rest of the body."

Shots into crowd hit five others

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The blaze of shots that critically wounded Sen. Robert F. Kennedy Wednesday at an election victory celebration, also felled five others in the crowded banquet hall.

The wounded included two newsmen, a union official and a teen-ager.

Police identified the five as William Weisel, 30; Ira Goldstein, 19; Elizabeth Evans, 43; Irwin Stroll, 17, and Paul Schrade, 43. All but Weisel, a Washington, D.C., resident, are from the Los Angeles area.

The above diagram shows where an assassin's bullet struck and entered the head of Senator Robert F. Kennedy early Wednesday morning. The slug reportedly entered behind the right ear and lodged in the lower part of Kennedy's brain.

Dr. Henry Cuneo, one of the surgeons who operated on Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, said that even if Kennedy lives, he may suffer extensive brain damage. In addition to the damage done by the bullet, there may have been an impairment of a blood supply to the "Mid-brain," which doctor's say controls the level of consciousness, pulse and heart.

Kennedy's chances are still slim

Yorty said four $100 bills were found on Sirhan, "with which he was planning on leaving if he could get away." He said Sirhan also carried a Pasadena newspaper clipping unfavorable toward Kennedy.

Slender and dark-haired, the young man accused of shooting Kennedy would tell police nothing about himself or his deed.

Prior to his identification, he was secretly arraigned as John Doe, on six counts of assault with intent to commit murder, and was held in $250,000 bail.

Five others also had been wounded in the fusillade.

The shooting shortly after midnight, P.D.T. turned from triumph to terror the scene at the ornate hotel on Wilshire Boulevard, where Kennedy had just thanked his cheering supporters for their part in the biggest victory of his White House campaign.

And in that speech, Kennedy called upon those who favor his nomination to help him overcome "divisions, violence, disenchantment" in America.

Then he turned, taking a short cut through a kitchen passageway, to go to a news conference — and met the violence he had condemned.

The assassin, apparently standing on a box or a can for better vantage, swiftly pumped all eight shots of his revolver.

Those who were in the corridor had differing accounts of the gunman's words.

Some said he cried as he shot: "I can explain. Let me explain."

Others told of hearing him shout: "I did it for my country."

Kennedy was hit three times, near the right ear, in the shoulder and the forehead.

It was the slug that hit near his ear which plunged into Kennedy's brain.

Kennedy was first taken to Los Angeles Central Receiving Hospital. The doctor who treated him there, Victor Baz, said the senator "was practically dead" when he arrived.

He was transferred to Good Samaritan Hospital and there, the team of six surgeons began operating at 3:12 a.m., P.D.T.

When their work was done, he was pronounced in "extremely critical condition."

All but a fragment of the bullet was removed from his brain, Mankiewicz said.

Mankiewicz said a second bullet, considered to have inflicted less serious injury, remained in the back of Kennedy's neck.

He said vital signs such as pulse and breathing were in good order, but there "may have been some impairment of the blood supply to the center of the brain."

Mankiewicz said that center controls the pulse, blood pressure and tracking of the eyes, but not the process of thinking.

The scene of turmoil, tears and hysteria which followed the shooting was televised live by cameras which had just carried Kennedy's victory talk on the California race.

Kennedy and his assailant were out of sight of the television cameras.

Across town, Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., the man Kennedy defeated in the California contest, led his supporters in silent prayer after the shooting.

The shock of the shooting quickly turned the roomful of some 2,000 election night celebrators into a scene of chaos.

Kennedy fell to the floor. Blood gushed from his head.

The shots brought pandemonium. "There were shrieks of 'God, God, not again.' There were curses, too."

"Get a doctor," someone shouted. "Please get a doctor."

A doctor administered emergency treatment. A priest said he held a rosary toward Kennedy and the senator clutched it, but the crush of people came between them.

Kennedy was wheeled on a stretcher to the hotel service elevator, taken by ambulance to Central Receiving Hospital.

There, the Rev. Thomas Peacina administered last rites of the Roman Catholic Church.

The senator's wife, Ethel, was with her husband.

"She didn't believe that he was alive, sort of because she could see that he wasn't responding," the doctor said. "So when we began to get a heartbeat, I put the stethoscope in her ears so she could listen."

At the ornate Ambassador Hotel, the gunman was in police hands.

Roosevelt Grier, giant Negro lineman of the Los Angeles Rams, had held the assassin, smashed the man's hand against a serving table, forcing loose the gun.

Grier, Olympic athlete Rafer Johnson and Kennedy bodyguard William Barry hauled the assassin away from the fallen senator.

"Kill him," a man shouted.

Police took over, hustled the assassin at gunpoint through the lobby of the rambling old hotel. "Lynch him, lynch him," shouted people in the crowd.

Rooney raises conspiracy issue

Area congressmen pray for RFK's recovery

By DAVID OTTAWAY
Record Washington Bureau
WASHINGTON, D.C. — Rep. Fred B. Rooney, D-Pa., raised the question of whether Kennedy had been the victim of a conspiracy. "The latest in a tragic series of assaults on prominent national figures remains cloaked in uncertainty and mystery at this time," commented Rooney.

"During the early morning hours, there were some statements by people at the scene indicating one and possibly two other persons may have been involved in addition to the suspect in custody. Whether this was the work of a single demented mind or the product of some conspiracy remains to be determined."

"I have heard many persons ask today 'What is happening to our country?' I only hope that this was the work of a crazed individual and nothing more."

Rooney said he had sent a telegram to the Kennedy family expressing his sincere wish that the Senator would win his fight for life.

Senator Hugh Scott, R-Pa., said in a statement that he was "deeply shocked at this inhuman act against a candidate for President of the United States."

Future worries women

By BOBBY WESTBROOK
Family Fare Editor
STROUDSBURG — Beyond the shock and horror of the shooting of Senator Robert F. Kennedy, local women with more than a casual interest in politics had serious misgivings about the future in an America in which such things are possible.

Mrs. John Wolfe, president of the newly organized Monroe County Women's Democratic Club, said: "It makes you afraid for the fine men of both parties whose lives can be endangered as they campaign for office."

She attributed the tendency to violence in American life to emotions which have been whipped up not only by political campaigning but by evidence of violence in other fields.

Mrs. John Kuller, president of the Monroe Council of Republican Women, feared:

"We will continue to face the possibility of personal and national tragedy until we return to the mainstream of American culture and unless we can get back on the right track of respect and discipline."

Mrs. John K. Britton, a member of the League of Women Voters, said:

"We are all criminally responsible for such acts until we pass a law which makes impossible such indiscriminate possession of firearms, which should be available only to responsible persons who are licensed."

"Otherwise I'm afraid this pattern — and it is a pattern — of violence cannot be restrained."

Suspect acted cool, very calm

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The young man arrested in the shooting of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy was "very cool, very calm, very stable and quite lucid" under a drumfire of questioning after the shooting, Police Chief Thomas Reddin said today.

During "a number of lengthy conversations," he talked freely and with interest — until asked who he was and anything about Kennedy, Reddin told a news conference.

Any time the questioning got around to the gunning down of Kennedy at the Ambassador hotel, the man would say "I prefer to remain incommunicado."

Reddin said the man spoke with a slight accent. The police chief speculated it might be Jamaican or Cuban.

The gun is in police hands and has been traced back three years.

Reddin said a man in Alhambra, Calif., gave the gun to his son-in-law in Marin County, which is north across the Golden Gate from San Francisco.

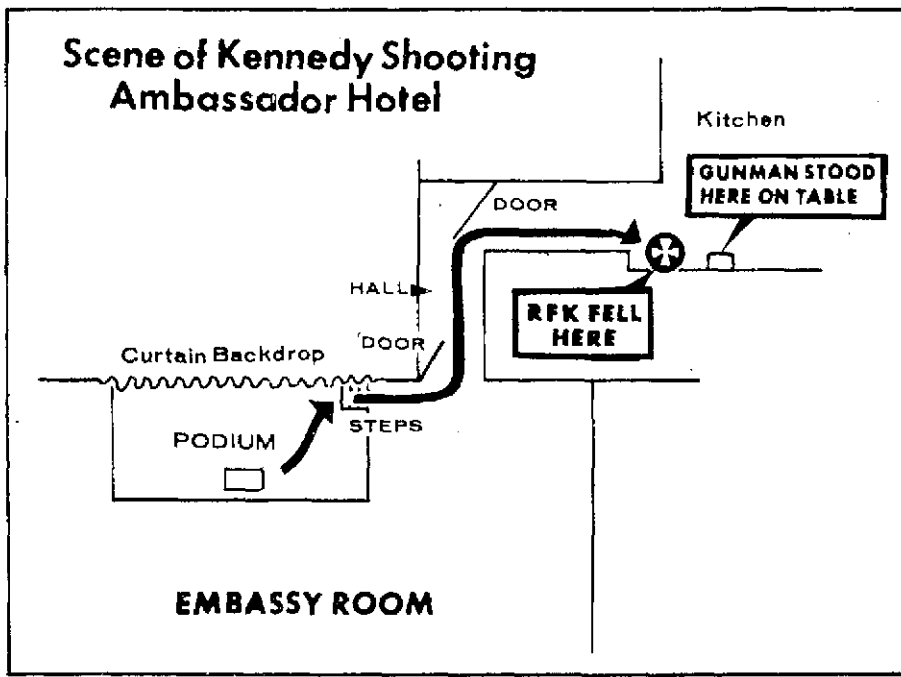

The Marin County man said the gun disappeared mysteriously in 1965.

In the gunman's pocket was a car key. Reddin said the key fitted a 1959 model automobile parked near the Ambassador Hotel where Kennedy was shot. The police chief said the car belonged to a hotel employee who worked in the kitchen. He was not the gunman.

Reddin said the gunman had no narcotics in his possession when seized and did not appear under the influence either of drugs or alcohol.

Reddin said Kennedy had twice been offered and twice declined Los Angeles police protection during his campaign.

After the shooting, President Johnson ordered the Secret Service to guard all presidential candidates. And Congress swiftly went to work to approve the step.

Pathway to tragedy

This diagram shows where Senator Robert F. Kennedy was shot early Wednesday by a gunman who mingled with the crowd at Kennedy's victory celebration following the California primary election.

ESSC students, professors shocked, amazed at attack

By RICK METHOT
Pocono Record Reporter
EAST STROUDSBURG — "Did you hear about Kennedy?" The question was often repeated on the East Stroudsburg State College Campus early Wednesday morning as students gathered in small clusters for additional news of the tragedy in California before heading for 7:30 classes.

Reaction to the realization that Sen. Robert F. Kennedy had been gunned down by pistol shots during the early morning hours shortly after he had completed a smiling "victory" speech marking his win in the vital California primary spread slowly on Normal Hill, with most students admitting they had only heard the news minutes before on the radio while readying for class.

Head-shaking bewilderment and disbelief were common reactions in Buck's College Shop where short-sleeved and summer dressed collegians were asking one another, "How is Kennedy?"

As one youth wearing a blue fraternity marked windbreaker put it, "His name (Kennedy's) was on everyone's lips in here."

A blonde coed in pink blouse and skirt got up from a booth to look for a newspaper to read of the startling incident in Los Angeles that came four years and six months after ESSC was shocked by the news that President John F. Kennedy had been struck down by bullets on a street in Dallas.

Martin Buck, owner of the popular campus shop, could only shake his head, matter, "What can you say?" after asking a student if he had, "Heard the radio lately?"

One youth in levis and sport shirt stood with a half-filled cup of coffee in his hand saying that he had "Just heard the news from another kid."

"Unbelievable" and "amazing" were frequent adjectives mumbled over toast and cigarettes with an occasional reference to a "sick society."

A brown-haired coed wearing sunglasses asked to a crowded table, "Did you hear about the suspect?" — and, "I just can't believe it happened again."

Overall first reactions seemed to be less emotional than four years ago when hundreds of students crowded somberly into dormitory television rooms and stood outside in small huddles surrounding those with transistor radios to hear news of the emotion-filled battle for life suffered by the late President Kennedy.

The numbing reality of the event that followed the JFK assassination and the recent murder of Civil Rights leader Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. seemed to express a reaction of shock into one of incredulity over the action of a Jerusalem-born, curly-haired youth in California Wednesday morning.

In a downstairs corridor of near-empty Oakes Hall, men students speculated on the then unknown identity of the suspect and seemed concerned that it was a young man reportedly in his twenties.

At 8:30 a.m. (EDT) less than six hours after the shots were fired, Thomas A. Blair, last semester voted one of the best lecturers on the ESSC campus, told his crowded philosophy class that he was "amazed" at the news of the murder attempt.

Blair said he felt it was, "really amazing what has happened to that family" (the Kennedy's) and added that the "worst thing" was the possibility that political assassination could become common in the United States.

Blair said he felt the country was "heading for trouble" if the trend of a violent settling of political problems continued.

He also mentioned concern over the apparent emotional aspect that loomed over the event in the face of a pending presidential campaign commenting that, "irrational acts have irrational effects."

"It's a great tragedy for the family and the country," Blair told his students, "It's just unbelievable."

"I'm not in any mood for class," he said, "but we have to do it."

Following a mid-class break, Blair returned with the news that Kennedy apparently survived the critical brain operation and the news met with audible murmurs of relief from several students.

A member of the class, Deborah Stann, Lake Valhalla, and an art education sophomore at Indiana University during the regular semester, said, "I think it's terrible," and added what seemed to be applicable to most persons, saying that, "People really feel worse," than they outwardly show.

Scott Semmel, who had been active in the ESSC "Students for McCarthy" group, told a friend that he felt the event, "unbelievable."

In the too short span from freshman to senior at ESSC, as well as colleges and universities throughout the nation it was an uneasy memory from November 22, 1963, to June 5, 1968, for those who cared to remember — it was another tragedy — and it was another Kennedy.

Guarded candidate

Reporter recalls Kennedy meeting

By BERT WALTER
Pocono Record Reporter
Robert F. Kennedy is a paradox unto himself. The short, lean, bushy-haired man lived constantly in a crowd and while his stature was physically small, he was the face in the crowd everyone sought to see and sought to touch.

But Robert F. Kennedy is a shy man by every sense of the word. He is also basically a reserved man, despite the opposite impression which has been drawn since his days as attorney general during his brother's administration.

The first time I met Robert F. Kennedy was February 7, 1966, while he was on a 10-city tour through the Mohawk Valley region of New York State.

The day began early. The day ended late.

The scene was the same at each stop of the way. At Little Falls, N. Y., thousands of school youngsters and hundreds upon hundreds of adults crowded the streets of the 9,000 population city.

Sen. Kennedy's sole purpose was to speak to the high school pupils of that area and later to discuss local problems with local officials.

The senator told the enthralled students, who crammed into the high school auditorium that he came to see them because he represented not only those persons over 21 years of age, but the younger ones also.

A near sonic boom of applause and cheers rang through the old auditorium.

Kennedy turned and smiled almost apologetically at the reporter who stood near the podium.

As in Berlin, where he repeated his brother's words of "Ich bin ein Berliner" (I am a Berliner) Robert Kennedy told the youngsters he was one of them and wanted to know their views.

Kennedy was swallowed in the crowd of students following his address, yet without fighting them, slowly and almost meekly walked forward, chiding with the youngsters.

In his itinerary, he was to make a brief stop at a radio station in nearby Herkimer. A crowd spilled over into the street outside the radio station awaiting his arrival.

Already late for several appointments, he remained with the crowd outside until he satisfied their questions, hello's and good luck's.

It was a hot day for a February and after the taped radio interview, Robert Kennedy remained in the cool hallway, visibly reluctant to go back into the crowd outside.

His hair hanging down his forehead and a tired look in his eyes, he was asked if he wanted anything.

"Just a glass of water if you would please," he asked slowly and apologetically.

Market ignores news of shooting

STROUDSBURG — The manager of a Stroudsburg brokerage office said Wednesday the wounding of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy will not greatly affect the stock market.

Fred Titus, Loeb, Rhoades and Co. manager, said, "There is actually no economic impact except a factor of uncertainty because Kennedy is still only a candidate for the presidency."

"The market does not like uncertainty, nor do people and, of course, the market is people. Should Kennedy succumb there is no doubt in my mind it would unleash further emotional strain."

"Although all the words have already been overly used, it is just terrible and tragic," Titus added.

New demand seen for gun laws

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Shock and horror, mixed with fervent prayers for recovery, were expressed by Pennsylvanians Wednesday in the wake of the sudden and senseless shooting of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy which Gov. Raymond P. Shafer called "an unconscionable tragedy."

It brought renewed demands, immediately, for quick enactment of stronger laws to control guns — and for tougher justice for criminals.

Mayor James H. J. Tate of Philadelphia, the state's biggest city where strong police measures have kept the lid on racial violence, said, "I am deeply shocked — this kind of thing should not happen in America."

But it did, in California, within view and hearing of millions over television and radio. "It is regrettable that the Kennedy family has to pay this kind of price for seeking public office," said Tate, a Democrat who is president of the U.S. League of Cities.

In the Keystone State, officials had to be awakened before dawn to be told the tragedy, and their first sleepy words were of the horror of the unwanted violence.

Shafer was in a Philadelphia hotel, where he had spent the night after appearing on a national television news program to comment on the California primary. He told of his determination to keep the Pennsylvania delegation solid behind his "favorite son" candidacy.

Would Shafer now press for passage of a new gun control law now before the legislature?

"Laws will help but the principal way to end this kind of thing is in the hearts and minds of individuals," said the governor.

"We are interested in upgrading our laws in this area to make it as difficult as possible to see actions like this occur."

Portland soldier wounded

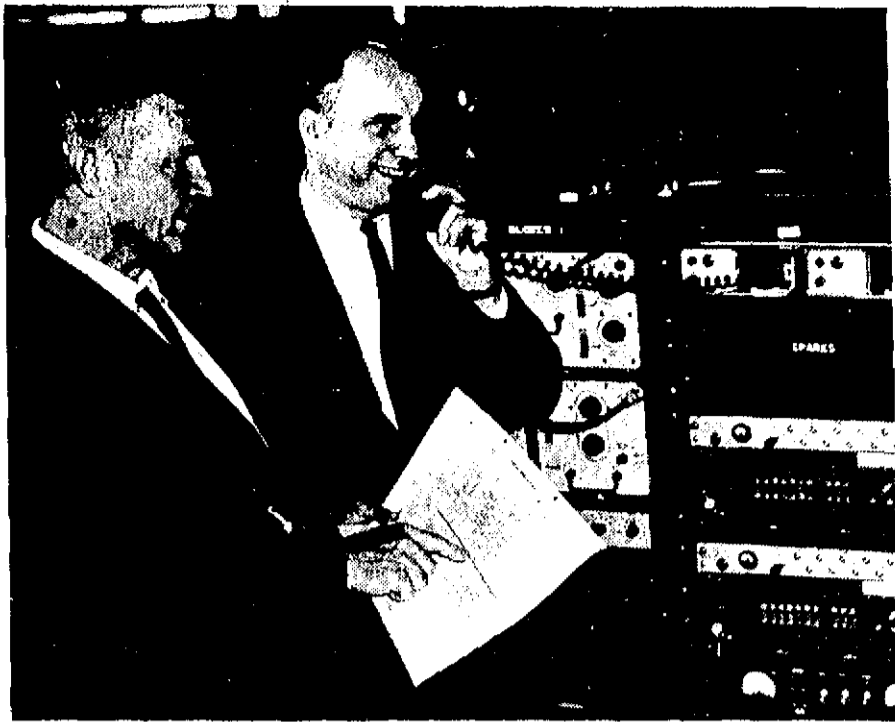

PORTLAND — Lt. Terry Brodt, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Brodt of Portland was wounded in Vietnam May 4 when he stepped on a mine.

The Army officer, was transferred during the past week to Watson Army Hospital, Fort Dix, N.J. after spending a week in a hospital in Japan.

Lt. Brodt is being treated for wounds in both legs and right hand and arm.

After his basic training, Brodt attended Officers Candidate School at Fort Sill, Okla. He spent six months in Hawaii and was sent to Vietnam November 30, 1967. He has been in the Army since February, 1966.

His wife, Teresa and seven month old son, Terry Jr., are making their home with Mr. and Mrs. William Brodt, Portland.

Two Tobyhanna Army Depot employees show the depot's "latest state of the art integral communications equipment" developed at Tobyhanna. The prototype model was designed, developed and produced locally in cooperation with Fort Monmouth, N.J. From left are William Duty of South Sterling and Joseph Murnack of Lake Ariel. Murnack, special projects officer, said 200 pieces of equipment are being assembled and tested.

Fixed base operator audit set

MOUNT POCONO — No final settlement has been made by the Pocono Mountain Airport Authority on the renewal contract for airport operator Eugene Locke and Aviation Services International.

Locke will continue to operate under terms of the contract which will expire at the end of June. Decision by the authority is pending an audit of ASI by Herbert B. Crane, CPA, Stroudsburg.

Chester Sebring reported that the end of runway 23 has been trimmed back 600 feet for additional clearance.

The airport sign on Route 611 will be moved and placed on airport property in accordance with a recent state highway law prohibiting signs on their "right of way."

It is hoped that final considerations for the acquisition of an additional 30 acres of land will be made by the next meeting July 2.

Graduation in Pen Argyl

PEN ARGYL — Commencement will be held at the Pen Argyl Area High School stadium 6:30 p.m. tonight.

In case of rain, the ceremonies will be held in the Senior High School Gymnasium. The members of the Board of Education, the faculty, and the senior class will participate in the procession.

Senior outing

PEN ARGYL — Members of the Class of 1968 at Pen Argyl High School spent Tuesday at the Fernwood Hotel in the Poconos.

They arrived at the hotel by bus at 9:15 a.m. and spent the day in golfing, horseback riding, bicycling, boating, swimming, playing tennis, archery, softball, and basketball. At noon luncheon was provided.

Brodheadsville sand site will be mined for 30 years

BRODHEADSVILLE — The Lehigh Valley Sand and Gravel Co. will probably be ready in five weeks to begin mining the land for sand on the old Stewart Mosier farm in Brodheadsville according to Eve Taviani of Nazareth, who heads the company.

Foundation equipment has already been set up on the property Taviani purchased from Karl Jacob of Bethlehem on May 14 which sold for $10,000 for the 50 acre farm.

Will mine area
Taviani will start mining the some 30 acre strip of land on the east side of Lower McMichaels road, despite objections by some 100 township property owners protesting the operation.

Taviani said "these people don't really know what they are talking about; they don't know the business like when they made the argument that my operation would drain the lake (Mincola). Why if I have to dig for sand down 100 feet it would take me over a 100 years to work it."

No ordinance
The township had no ordinance to prevent my operation here and the only state regulation is against dust. I won't have any dust, not for mining sand, not when I will be using water at the rate of 1,300 gallons a minute."

Sand is hard to get in this area especially a good grade, according to Taviani. Samplings were made down to 30 feet at every 10 foot level. The samplings are good, Taviani said, explaining that this is glacial deposit that has no shale rock or "clay balls" which are undesirable for concrete work.

"I will move my office here, probably for the next 30 years, Taviani said.

Taviani brought no arguments in defense of his operation when the petition protesting it was submitted to the Chestnut Hill township supervisors Monday night by Mrs. Miriam Grogg, a Brodheadsville resident whose property is adjacent to where Taviani will work.

The supervisors Monday night refused to enter into a dispute regarding the petition justifying the matter is not a public problem, rather a dispute between a businessman and citizens.

Mrs. Grogg said she will postpone further action but will probably approach the county commissioners with the petition in two weeks, depending on the development of the mining operations adjacent to her home and the cemetery behind the Zion United Church of Christ.

88 DV seniors graduate Friday

MILFORD — A total 88 seniors at Delaware Valley High School will graduate 8 p.m. Friday during commencement exercises in the high school auditorium.

The senior class members will have a class night 8 p.m. tonight. The class night will be highlighted by presentation of awards by Karl Schneck, principal.

A pops concert 7:30 p.m. Friday will precede the 8 p.m. graduation procession.

The Rev. Raymond O'Neill will give the invocation.

Teresa Brown and Linda Samide will play a piano duet.

Seniors Larry Myer, Teresa Brown and Robert Kenny will address the graduating class on three specific phases of "The Paradox of Freedom."

Jean Fisher will present a vocal solo and Leland Cramer, superintendent of schools, will recommend the class for graduation. Dr. Alan Zulick, president of the Board of Education, will present diplomas.

The Rev. Arthur Meissner will give the benediction.

The graduates are:

Grace V. Adams, Gary Allen, Barry C. Benner, Kathleen T. Bicknell, Joseph J. Bohnert, David A. Brighton, Edward J. Brombacher, Lawrence E. Brown, Teresa C. Brown, Robert J. Brozekat, Keith Bullock, Richard J. Carr, James J. Clarke, John R. Cokerella, Joseph F. Corcoran, Ellen J. Cramer, Mary M. Crawford, Mary A. Cron.

Rufus Davis, Wesley J. DeGraw, Wilma May Deitz, Carolyn Ann Dexter, Karen Lynn Engvaldsen, Lynn J. Fedorka, Clarence N. Fish.

Conservation Expo plans outlined

HERSHEY — Conservation of Pennsylvania's natural resources will be the theme of the Conservation Exposition of the National Plowing Contest at Hershey, August 27-28-29.

A total 2,300 acres will be used to show modern ways of soil, water, woodland, wildlife, conservation and roadbank stabilization. More than one dozen federal and state agencies and local groups have completed plans for building demonstrations for the three-day event.

Charles Slaton, U.S. Soil Conservation Service, and chairman of the Conservation Exposition, said that a bus tour of the conservation work will be available to the public. More than one dozen buses will be used to transport the guests on the conservation tour.

A number of conservation practices used in northeastern United States will be under construction during the plowing contest. Terracing, land drainage, and water management practices will be installed by every machinery.

Dreher Township, Wayne County, at their special joint meeting called to act upon a petition containing 129 signatures calling for action against the location of a sawmill in the center of town.

The petition, which protested not the sawmill, itself, but the choice of location, was presented to 145 persons in the area, of which 129 affixed their signatures to the paper.

"The petition was a sampling of public opinion," said Philip Feigel, who, with Mrs. Feigel, spearheaded the opposition to the location of the new industry on Newfoundland's Main Street.

"And, if this petition should do no other good, it may have aroused the community to the seriousness of its problem... problems which will continue until ordinances are passed," he said.

Area youth gets award

SOUTH STERLING — Terry Baughan, South Sterling, who will begin his senior year at Monmouth College in the Fall, was presented with the "Brother of the Year" award by Sigma Pi Fraternity during a banquet at the college.

Terry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Baughan, of The Lancaster, South Sterling, has been elected president of Sigma Pi for 1968-69. He is a business administration major at Monmouth.

Brownie troop activities were many

NEWFOUNDLAND — Wet feet and pussywillows were the two "signs of Spring" with which the little girls of Brownie Troop 252, Newfoundland, returned from a hike recently.

It has been a busy Spring for the unit, according to Pamela Gravel, who serves as scribe.

The troop visited the Holiday Hill Nursing Home in Newfoundland, and sang songs for all of the guests to enjoy. They also presented their "grandmothers" with a plant.

A highlight of the Spring's activities was the attendance at the Olympic Games at Hawley, where brownies, juniors and cadettes from Lake Neighborhood joined in an all-day outing.

The brownies made corsages for their mothers for Mother's Day to round out their handicraft work.

With only two more meetings to go before the end of the season, Troop 252 is planning a trip to the Newfoundland Area Public Library and a hike and picnic.

Susan Akers, of Greentown, leads the brownies and the troop includes girls from Newfoundland, South Sterling, LaAnna, Greentown, Promised Land and the surrounding area.

Census Bureau caught in middle of statistical cross-fire

Robert Kennedy fourth in line

A joyous celebration in California turned into a gun shooting tragedy early Wednesday morning as Sen. Robert F. Kennedy was critically wounded at the Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles.

Kennedy and his supporters were in the midst of celebrating victory in the California primary election when a hail of bullets felled the New York senator with wounds of the head, neck and shoulder.

It was a shocking experience for all concerned and one of almost unbelievable consequence. It just couldn't be—but it was.

The shooting was actually the fourth of its kind and the second involving the Kennedy family. It was in 1963 that an assassin's bullet killed President John F. Kennedy in Dallas.

First in the series of assassinations was Malcolm X, then President Kennedy and earlier this year Rev. Martin Luther King. Each was either a religious or political leader and each was gunned down without warning.

Robert Kennedy at this writing was still clinging to life in a desperate fight to live and a more desperate battle to win the nomination as president of the United States—the office for which he was ready to give up his life.

However, even more important than the shooting of a presidential candidate was the factor that a father of 10 children was gunned down in cold blood. With Mrs. Kennedy expecting her 11th child in the near future, her husband clings to life although mortally wounded.

What has happened to our morality? Are families and individuals no longer safe in public? If we aren't in agreement are we now fair game for anyone wishing to brandish a weapon with the intent of ending our life?

Rich man, poor man or individual of little renown—it doesn't really matter. Death is death and laws are laws.

Three members of the Kennedy family have devoted their lives to politics and government. One has already paid for his dedication and sacrifice with his life. A second may join the same category at any moment.

Why must dedicated people suffer at the hands of mentally upset individuals, people with grudges or people who don't maintain the necessary mentality to tell right from wrong?

Robert Kennedy campaigned as a fearless individual. He asked no quarter and gave none. He respected friend and foe alike for a difference of opinion and he in turn expected the same treatment.

Disliking the New York senator or the Kennedy family is one thing—but out and out attempted murder is something else. We fault the attacker and our law enforcing agencies of today.

Suddenly there is no protection where protection is demanded. The only time adequate protection is supplied is when it is too late for protection. Now that Robert Kennedy has been shot, the other presidential candidates are under heavy guard.

No longer can we feel that assassinations or attempted assassinations are solo efforts. Due to the rapidity in attempts and similarity in pattern, each of the shootings of political and religious leaders must be considered as a blight on the American way of life and quite possibly a very well coordinated plan to embarrass the United States in front of the remainder of the world.

The King shooting remains unsolved. The John Kennedy murder was at the hands of Lee Oswald, who once lived in Russia, and now Sirhan Sirhan, once a resident of the Middle East, is charged with the shooting of Robert Kennedy.

When will we supply protection for our religious and political leaders and even more important heads of families? Will we soon return to normalcy or will violence be the key of all future life?

How to Raise a Delinquent

ANYONE INTERESTED (God forbid) in raising a juvenile delinquent need only follow these never-fail rules:

1. Begin at infancy to give the child everything he wants. In this way he will grow up to believe the world owes him a living.
2. When he picks up bad words, laugh at him. This will make him think he's cute.
3. Never give him any spiritual training. Wait until he is 21 and then let him "decide for himself."
4. Pick up everything he leaves lying around—books, shoes, clothing. Do everything for him so that he will be experienced in throwing all responsibility on others.
5. Quarrel frequently in his presence. In this way he will not be too shocked when the home breaks up.
6. Give a child all the spending money he wants. Never let him earn his own. Why should he have things as tough as you did?
7. Satisfy his every craving for food, drink and comfort. Denial may lead to harmful frustrations.
8. Take his part against neighbors, teachers, policemen. They are prejudiced against your child.
9. When he gets into trouble, apologize for yourself by saying, "I never could do anything with him."
10. Prepare for a life of grief. You are bound to have it.

BY DONALD R. LARRABEE
Record Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The Census Bureau is currently caught in a crossfire between citizens groups demanding more statistical data for business and planning purposes and individual Americans who think the government is becoming too nosy.

The man in the middle is Census Director A. Ross Eckler who is represented by some congressmen as a bureaucratic ogre who wants to reduce human life to markings on a tape to be fed to a computer. Eckler's job at the moment is to convince the lawmakers that he will keep the questions in the 1970 census to a minimum and still meet the Government's urgent needs.

A test of the proposed census sheet in four communities last year brought screams of protest from persons who said their privacy is being threatened as never before. Eckler hasn't yet been able to persuade congress that many of the 120 questions won't be asked of everyone and that others will be dropped in due course.

At least 30 congressmen, with more joining the ranks daily, have filed bills which would severely limit the number of questions a person must answer without exposing himself to a fine, or jail sentence.

They are: Name and address, relationship to head of household, sex, date of birth, race or color, marital status and visitors in the home at the time of census.

Under the restrictive legislation, families could refuse to answer any questions beyond these without being penalized. Even though a Federal law protects the confidentiality of census data, some persons in the New Haven, Conn. test market, for example, complained bitterly about being asked such questions as: What were you doing in April, 1962? Do you share your shower? What is your income? How do you enter your residence? How many babies have you had?

Many congressmen have told Eckler they think such questions are nobody's business, least of all the Federal Government's, and could very well be in violation of the constitutional intent of the census.

Admittedly, things have gone a long way since the time when the 10-year census concentrated on getting a head count for purposes of congressional districting. But Eckler said his plans are being exaggerated and he isn't prying any more than his predecessor in 1960.

"We are not asking questions on sharing your shower," he said. "But I have seen editorials and everything else about that. We are trying to find out if a family had a bathroom for itself or is sharing a bathroom. That is a question relating to inadequate housing."

Questions on social security numbers, religious and political affiliations have already been eliminated. But Eckler is inclined to stick with another controversial item about a person's journey to work. He says many private and governmental groups dealing with urban problems, traffic and transportation are seeking this information for their planning.

Demanding information
And an organization known as the Federal Statistics Users Conference is demanding all sorts of information to help non-profit research groups, business firms and labor unions. The Conference says that passage of the pending bill would be "the most damaging step Congress could take."

Still, congressmen say they are quite certain the American people are concerned about "big brother" peering over their shoulder. This was evident last year when the Senate Judiciary Committee published a 600-page book showing that Uncle Sam has a staggering amount of information available on all of us. The book has been a best-seller.

It shows that the government has at least three billion separate files containing 27 billion items of information. The data resulted from a questionnaire to every Federal department and agency to determine the amount, nature, and use of the information they maintain on individuals.

Senators were surprised to learn that federal files include 332 million medical histories; 264 million police records; 279 million psychiatric histories; 187 million security reports; 1.2 billion income records; 2.3 billion current and past addresses; and 2.9 billion names.

As far as many congressmen are concerned, the whole question takes on an atmosphere of urgency in the light of proposals to create a get test three billion separate files containing 27 billion items of information. The data resulted from a questionnaire to every Federal department and agency to determine the amount, nature, and use of the information they maintain on individuals.

As far as many congressmen are concerned, the whole question takes on an atmosphere of urgency in the light of proposals to create a Federal "data bank" combining the files of many agencies into a central collection. The government's dossier on individuals is growing—and it may take some firm action by Congress to insure that only essential information is gathered—or, at least, that its use is restricted.

The old whammy

Debates need strength

WASHINGTON — The "great debate" between Senator McCarthy and Senator Kennedy had only two weaknesses. It wasn't a debate and it wasn't very great.

But there were special drawbacks to this confrontation which will not be present in any joint television appearance between the nominees of the two political parties.

The worst drawback was that there were no real differences between the two. It was all too bland. The only thing that kept viewers from turning the dial was the hope that something better was coming. It didn't, certainly not as far as providing any substantial basis for choice between the two men. And when a little debate seemed in prospect, each skittered away from it because neither wanted to offend the other's supporters; they would need them at the convention.

But this should not detract from the interest and value of a series of genuine confrontations between the two nominees.

Time donated

The Senate has already passed the legislation to make such joint appearances possible—with the networks donating prime time—and it is probable that the House will do the same shortly.

I have no doubt that every one of the five principal contenders for the nomination would debate following the precedent of the Kennedy-Nixon debates in 1960. Humphrey and Nixon have said they would.

What is needed is to draw some lessons from the past five joint appearances—four Nixon-Kennedy and one McCarthy-Kennedy—to see how the format ought to be changed so that the exchange of views would be sharper.

Don MacLean

Don't take him lightly

WASHINGTON — It's almost eerie how the other candidates refuse to take Sen. Eugene McCarthy (D., Minn.) seriously. I'll wager they'll still be pooh-poohing his every victory right up to the day he drives up to Capitol Hill to be sworn in as president.

Just for fun, let us imagine that scene. I'll interview the men he defeated and this is what they'll probably say:

Robert F. Kennedy: "Sen. McCarthy's razor thin win in the general election last November shows, of course, that he has some strength. However, I do not think it is at all meaningful and neither does my dog, Freckles."

"What, I ask you, is Sen. McCarthy going to do about the poor? And how about our cities? We need more debate on these issues. Then we'll let the people decide who will be president. On the other hand, if today McCarthy raises his hand and is sworn in, then I no longer will be a viable candidate."

Not impressed

Hubert H. Humphrey: "No, I'm not really impressed by the plurality McCarthy won in the general election. After all, my name was not on the ballot. I like to think that if I menter, and in some decent depth.

Drawing on the experience I had in participating in one of the Kennedy-Nixon debates and in watching the pale carbon copy last week, I think there is much which can be done to make this kind of political forum far more useful both to the public and to the candidates themselves.

Such changes as these:

(1)—Confine each joint appearance to one or at most two central issues. In the Kennedy-Nixon confrontations and even more so in the McCarthy-Kennedy conversation piece, the talk simply spurted all over the landscape; there was no focus on what was important as against what was trivial; no single matter was dealt with in any substance. Better focus is absolutely crucial.

(2)—Let the nominees decide what issues they want to debate. If they cannot agree let the choice be alternated between them.

(3)—Reduce the role of the press. It is the panel format that diluted the Kennedy-Nixon debates and the McCarthy-Kennedy debate even more so. The cross-questioning by the reporters is what most makes the confrontations far thinner and superficial than they ought to be. Why not one presiding chairman to be selected by the candidates or alternating chairman? Then give the candidates time for direct argument, full rebuttal, and summation.

(4)—Let the debates run to an hour and a half, and perhaps a question period by two newsmen limited to the last half hour would be useful to introduce pertinent questions to clear up points left unanswered and to bring in matters which may have been deliberately omitted.

had gotten the nomination, I would have won. In fact, I'm sure of it. But, anyway, it's still a little soon to tell, the inaugural ceremony don't start for another 10 minutes and anything can happen in politics."

Richard M. Nixon: "I will say this — McCarthy's recent victory cannot be overlooked. On the other hand, I will say this — Bobby Kennedy is still the major threat, next to Hubert Humphrey and I'm not completely ruling out Lyndon Johnson. He'll be president for another six months, still time to turn it over to Hubert. And I know Bobby's up to something."

Nelson Rockefeller: "My organization is firmly knit now and I should say my campaign ought to peak in the next three or four minutes. Of course, some Republicans — and let's not forget our Democratic friends — will say we're starting a bit late. However, I have a splendid sense of timing about these things."

Ronald Reagan: "I'm not a candidate, but if the Chief Justice should ask me to be sworn in, right now, instead of Eugene What's-his-name, I'm ready."

George Wallace: "McCarthy may be president of the United States, but not of the south. I have spoken."

Letters to the Editor

Choosing best man

Editor, The Record

How can we choose the best man for a public office?

Shall it be because of his pleasant voice, his appearance on television, his promises, the percentage he receives at the polls, his vote-getting ability in the primaries, his attitude toward business or toward labor?

I hope not! How do we know if he can keep his promises, or if when elected his attitudes will change toward the issues to which he now knows all the answers?

It is well that a candidate have a thorough and varied experience in matters pertaining to the office he seeks. He should be mature, whether he has lived 30 or 60 years.

He should be realistic, keep a cool head, keep his feet on the ground and still have a vision of gradual improvement and growth for our country and for the whole world.

He should realize that no one stands alone, that we must cooperate with others, both as individuals and as nations.

In weighing a course of action he should remember that the words of a person or nation may not be true, but rather that their character as shown by previous actions is the safest index to follow.

In short, a candidate's integrity, the sum total of his previous actions, his open-mindedness, his ability to learn and grow, is the real yardstick to his fitness for office.

Too many taxes

Editor, The Record:

With the one per cent wage tax going into effect, what happens to the personal or occupation tax?

What is the difference in these taxes, other than one is on the estimated amount earned, and the wage tax is on the gross earned.

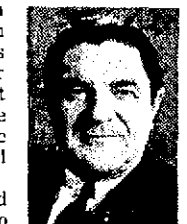

Personal tax has only been paid by 75 per cent of the residents who have attained 21 years of age, because they never registered to vote. Now that all persons earning a wage have to pay one per cent and from the age of legal working age and not having to be 21 years of age, 50 per cent more persons will be paying taxes than were doing so before.

Therefore, I think it is time that those who levy taxes take a long, hard look at the injustice of two wage taxes on the property owner, and do away with the personal tax.

All property owners know and agree that taxes are necessary, and are willing to pay within reason. The wage tax I am sure, and I am sure all taxpayers will agree is the fair way to place a tax on the public.

A good many taxpayers are concerned about this and would like to have some answers as to why they have to pay both?

Boss also has fears

MY HUSBAND is a successful businessman and is at the head of an organization that employs about three hundred people. He is a driving, forceful executive and never, during working hours, is confused by any problem that presents itself in business or with his employees. These are the reports I hear from all the people that know him.

When he comes home he is a totally different person and seems to live in fear about his health, which is good and his finances, which are excellent. He says that only to me can he show his weaknesses knowing that I love him and will support him. What can I do to help him?

Mrs. H. L. S., Texas

Dear Mrs. S.: It is amazing how frequently people, who give the impression of being the Rock of Gibraltar on whom friends and colleagues can always depend, have a hidden recess of personal anxiety. Many obviously stable people like your husband compensate for their own inner fears by building a structure covered by an outer shell of strength which hides the fears they so carefully mask.

The energy that he uses during the day at work to keep others from recognizing his weaknesses must reach a peak of utter exhaustion when he comes home. Now he feels that he can take off his mask without being made to feel ashamed of the weaknesses that he so carefully disguises.

Fear and anxiety is generated in this frenetic world called "civilization." In many ways we haven't progressed as well as people who lived in underprivileged areas with a great sense of inner composure, tranquility and peace.

There is no social, cultural, geographic, financial or ethnic group that does not in some way pay the penalty for the hectic pace we all live in. It therefore should be no shame if he were to learn that many people like himself avoid giving vent to their anxieties because they are considered to be so "dependable."

This is exactly where you can help. If he can be shown that he has a right to his fears and if he can be made to express them, many of them will tend to disappear rather than accumulate in the hidden recesses of his mind.

I am certain that your personal physician would be terribly surprised to learn that this dominant person whom he has been treating for a long time is filled with all the frailties of being human just like everyone else. You both fell into the trap of cleverly masking your husband's fears.

Discuss the total problem with your doctor. He then will be in an excellent position to evaluate the severity of this neurotic picture. I call it that because it is so and cannot be whitewashed by any other name.

At the present time your husband is functioning well in his job, but not so in his home. If this is allowed to progress without guidance or psychological direction you may find that his efficiency in his job will suffer as much as does his inner efficiency as a total human being. People with his strength can readily be made to grasp the need for psychological help in a mature way. This will bring both you and your family the sense of relief and comfort that you long have been deprived of.

Dr. Coleman welcomes letters from readers, and, while he cannot undertake to answer each one, he will use questions in his column whenever possible and when they are of general interest. Address your letters to Dr. Coleman in care of this newspaper.

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A year-long cease-fire, repeatedly violated, has done nothing to dispel the hatred between Arab and Jew and the threat of war.

Surprises available in state

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP)—Planning a summer vacation? Try traveling the highways and byways of Pennsylvania. You may be surprised at what's available in the Keystone State.

For example, there is a Falls in Wyoming County, a Cyclone in McKean, Drums in Luzerne, Coral in Indiana, an Emporium in Cameron, a Blue Bell in Lancaster and a Creamery in Montgomery.

If you are a bachelor and your dream is to find a partner, you might do well to begin your search in any of these Pennsylvania towns:

Isabella in Fayette County, Joana in Berks, Sharon in Mercer, Anita in Jefferson, Mary D. in Schuylkill, Elizabeth in Allegheny or Mildred in Sullivan. You will find a Darling in Delaware and a Queen in Bedford.

For the girl bachelor, there is a large choosing. She might visit Allen in Cumberland, Clifford in Susquehanna, Howard in Centre, Gordon in Schuylkill, Bart in Lancaster, Chester in Delaware or Frank in Allegheny.

Ono (Lebanon) you say, you want to share your life with a man of wealth, strength and mystery. Well, be on the Look-out (Wayne) for Atlas (Northumberland) and Aladdin (Lancaster).

As far as wealth is concerned, the bachelor girl has a Fair-chance (Fayette) of finding the man of her dreams in Cashtown (Adams) or in Wampum (Lawrence).

If she is interested in jewels, she should try these places: Diamond in Venango County, Emerald in Lehigh or Crown-in-Clarion.

The traveler also can find plenty of Freedom (Beaver) and Liberty (Tioga) while touring the state.

If you become tired, there is a Pillow in Dauphin and Iron Springs in Adams.

Are trees your fancy? Visit Cherry Tree in Indiana County, Hickory in Washington, Oaks in Montgomery or Crabtree in Westmoreland.

Also, while Drifting (Cearfield County) through the state, be sure to visit Egypt in Lehigh and Berlin in Somerset.

still hangs heavy over the Middle East.

The anniversary Wednesday of the outbreak of last year's six-day war finds Israel and its Arab neighbors in a state of military alert, braced for a new flare-up of violence.

International diplomacy and U.N. mediation have failed to bring about a political settlement of the bitter conflict. Despite significant concessions by some of the Arab states, a peaceful solution seems nowhere in sight.

Israeli troops still occupy the Arab lands they swept over in battle, from Qatira, in the north, to the banks of the Jordan River and the Suez Canal.

President Gamal Abdul Nasser's Egyptian army, decimated in the Sinai Desert by the Israeli blitzkrieg, has been largely rebuilt and re-equipped from the Soviet arsenal. It stands behind the idled Suez Canal capable, Nasser claims, of repelling any Israeli attack.

Three times the Arabs and Israelis have gone to war, in 1948, 1956 and 1967. Three times the Israelis have triumphed.

The Egyptian leader says a fourth round is "inevitable."

Syria, odd man out in the Arab world, also has rebuilt its army with Soviet help. It will have nothing to do with negotiations aimed at a peaceful settlement with Israel. But the cease-fire line reaches to within 25 miles of Damascus, the capital, and despite big talk Syria is unlikely to spark any new Middle East hostilities.

Jordan, exposed, ill-armed and already grievously mauled, could provide such a flashpoint. From its teeming refugee camps and sun bleached hills, Arab guerrillas in increasing numbers are slipping at night across the Jordan to harass Israeli troops occupying the west bank, plant mines and shoot up Kibbutzim.

The Arab commando of 1968 is a new phenomena in the Middle East. For the first time the Arab as an individual, independent of governments, is engaging actively in the fight for the reconquest of Palestine. He has captured the imagination of the Arab world and has become a symbol of resistance.

The guerrilla threat prompted an Israeli assault across the Jordan March 21 to destroy commando bases. Defense Minister Moshe Dayan has warned that Israel will strike hard at Arabs extending aid to the guerrillas.

Israel is adopting an increasingly tough stance.

While nominally accepting the U.N. resolution calling for withdrawal of Israeli troops from occupied Arab lands, it demands face-to-face talks with the Arabs to conclude a peace treaty. It defies U.N. demands that it rescind annexation of the old city of Jerusalem.

Egypt and its allies have made some major concessions. They are on record as having accepted all points of the U.N. resolution, including acknowledgment of Israel's sovereignty and its right to use the Suez Canal.

But face-to-face talks—that far they will not go.

The efforts of U.N. mediator Gumar V. Jarring to bring the two sides together have so far been in vain. The Arab states have failed to regain one inch of the 26,000 square miles of territory occupied last year by Israel.

Jordan, exposed, ill-armed and already grievously mauled, could provide such a flashpoint.

From its teeming refugee camps and sun bleached hills, Arab guerrillas in increasing numbers are slipping at night across the Jordan to harass Israeli troops occupying the west

Marine command changes

WYOMING — Major Gerald P. Mahoney Jr., Clarks Summit, has assumed command of Marine Wing Motor Transport Squadron-5 in Wyoming.

Area dignitaries and a large number of friends and relatives braved rainy weather recently to attend the formal change of command ceremonies held at the Wyoming Reserve Center.

Maj. Mahoney relieved Col. Joseph W. Murray Jr., Canadensis, commanding officer of the unit since May 15, 1966 and a member of the Marine Corps since 1942.

A graduate of East Stroudsburg State College, Col. Murray has also served as Executive Officer of the former Third Motor Transport Battalion, USMC, in Wyoming.

Col. Murray completed Officers Candidate School, Quantico, Va., Jan. 10, 1945, and was immediately assigned to two months of combat conditioning at Camp Pendleton, Calif., prior to serving 13 months as a salvage officer with the Fleet Marine Force in the Pacific from February 1945 to March 1946.

Radio Club to help Wind Gap celebration

WIND GAP — The Blue Mt. Radio Club, Inc., met at Wind Gap Borough Hall recently with all officers present. One new member was welcomed during the opening.

A report was given by Mrs. William VanBuskirk, the club's representative to the Wind Gap 75th Anniversary Celebration, on the activities planned for that affair.

The club will present a continual demonstration of the two-way radio operation during the Saturday festivities.

Their radios will also assist where needed in the parade. Reports on many committees were heard on their progress.

President Gold appointed a committee to get prices for the purchase of an adding machine for the use of the treasurer and the audit committee.

All arrangements for the club picnic, July 14, are in the final stages. Date for the Children's Home picnic is Aug. 25. The membership passed a motion to hold a held day exercise on Sept. 8, with the final arrangements to be made by the communication officers.

A bake sale scheduled for this month was slated by the ways and means committee.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

There's one thing about the revolution in men's fashions: it certainly makes it much more interesting to shop for Father's Day presents.

Gone are the days when you had your choice of white shirts with stiff collars, socks, ties, handkerchiefs or after shave lotion. Now it's the glamour gifts: why you can spend a fortune on men's perfume and cosmetics alone.

Or jewels. If he's anti-beads, there are still pendants and tie clips which can double as lapel pins, and something brand new turtle tacs which the makers say threatens to replace the necktie once and for all. In heraldic sport or animal motifs, they're made to wear on turtle neck shirts.

Since even the most conservative man now must have at least one turtleneck shirt in his wardrobe, the next thing would be to get him a Nehru or Mao collared jacket or shirt, or bell bottom trousers.

However, the gift which really fascinated me was a handsome mustache and goatee, already grown, which he can then shape to suit his alter ego, poet, painter or prince. Made of the finest human hair and comes in six shades. Sorry, Grandpa, no gray!

What with women investing so heavily in wigs, wiglets and falls, it seems only fair to give the men some transformations, too. But you'd better make sure he'd wear them. They're too expensive for a joke.

Playschool Co-op elects officers for 16th year

STROUDSBURG — Mrs. Robert Miller of 622 Scott St., Stroudsburg has been elected president of the Pocono Playschool Co-op. The cooperative operates a state-licensed, non-profit nursery school for 2 to 5 years olds in the recreation room of the Stroudsburg Methodist Church.

Also elected at the spring meeting were Mrs. Calvin E. Schock, secretary and Mrs. Duncan Alling and Mrs. Harry Strawdinger as members of the board.

The resignation of Mrs. Stanley G. Grace who has served as treasurer for the last seven years was accepted with regret and Mrs. James R. Marsh of 213 Wallace St., Stroudsburg will take her place.

Mrs. Edward Burnett, vice president and registrar, presided at the meeting. She reported on the applications already received for the school's 16th year which begins with the September term.

Parents interested in registering their children may call her for applications and general information.

The teacher, Mrs. William R. Thomas, whose pre-school pupils call her Miss Jane, described the new equipment she has selected and the order was approved.

The new president will conduct the annual parents' night meeting on Tuesday, Sept. 3, when Miss Jane will give a detailed explanation of the nursery school program for the new term.

Emilie N. Miller bride of Georgian

STROUDSBURG — Miss Emilie N. Miller, daughter of Alty and Mrs. Elmer D. Christine of Cherry Valley, Stroudsburg R. D. 1, was married on Saturday June 1 at 2 p.m. in the Grace Lutheran Church East Stroudsburg, to David P. Burnett.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph N. Burnett of 822 Pinetree Drive, Decatur, Ga.

Rev. William F. Wunder performed the ceremony before an altar decorated with white mums and white gladiolas. Mrs. Bona Michaels was organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore floor-length gown of white voile and imported val lace. Made in empire style, the gown had a jacket of ruffled val lace, and long bishop sleeves with full ruffled cuffs. The attached train fell from the empire waistline. She wore a bonnet and veil.

Her maid of honor was her sister, Miss Patricia L. Miller, who wore a gown of white organza trimmed in green with an empire waistline and headpiece of white organza with a bouffant veil.

Miss Mary Kathryn Gregory, niece of the bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Gregory of Nazareth, was flower girl.

Ringbearer was Gregory F. Christine, brother of the bride. Joseph N. Burnett served as his son's best man. Ushers were J. Nicholas Burnett, brother of the bridegroom, and E. David Christine, brother of the bride.

A reception for 63 guests was held at The Fernwood in Bushkill.

After two nights at Pocono Gardens Lodge, Cresco, Mr. and Mrs. Burnett left for a week in Miami. For traveling the bride wore a two-piece grey suit with white ruffled blouse, matching hat and black patent leather accessories.

They will make their home in Atlanta, Ga.

The bride attended Stroudsburg High School, Moravian Seminary for Girls, and Sanford Preparatory School and Shorter College.

Her husband, a graduate of the Decatur, Ga., High School, is a graduate of Georgia School of Technology.

Wildlife endangered by man

By JOHN BARBOUR
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Nothing lives here except Man gives it permission to live. Nothing survives unless it serves him to have it survive.

This naked brute whose young are too weak to fare alone, this beast of strong hands and mind who kills from afar, this contradiction of cruel and gentle deeds, this newcomer, owns and rules all the earth.

Today on his planet, there are more than 500 kinds of bird and mammal listed as rare or endangered, their survival in doubt. Most are victims of man's greed, or fear, or the intolerance of their presence.

Man's presence is more than man himself. It is fences, measured fields, grazing cattle and sheep, pesticides, fertilizers, sewage, noise, the domestic dog and cat, the common mouse and rat, all the satellite creatures that orbit man's purpose and pleasure.

For centuries on the high seas men pursued the great whales for the wealth of their bodies, oil and bone for lamp and corset, munitions and fertilizer. In the last 100 years of the hunt, his boats were faster, his harpoons more lethal than the whale population could bear.

In the last 50 years the whales have killed more than two million whales. They have driven the blue whale, the largest creature ever to live on earth, a warm-blooded mammal the size of 30 elephants, to the edge of extinction. No one knows for sure how few are left.

On the island of Madagascar off the eastern coast of Africa, there lives a primate, a lemur, a nocturnal creature of big eyes and naked ears, 18 inches of body and 13 inches of bushy tail, a tree-dweller whose past is linked to that of man. It is called the aye aye.

The aye aye became part of native superstition. At one time this tended toward the lemur's protection. Natives believed that touching one meant death, so living aye ayes were shunned.

summers ago when he led stormy demonstrations into suburban Wauwatosa in protest against judicial membership in restricted clubs, is aware of the criticism.

White men continue to lead Negro masses

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) - In this era of Black Power militancy, it is strange indeed for a white man to continue to lead masses of Negroes.

But in Milwaukee, the nation's 11th largest city, that is the case. The Rev. James E. Groppi has survived the fury of fellow priests, the scorn of white leaders, the scrutiny of police and judges and the criticism of black militants stung by his staying power.

And when, in the mourning period for the slain Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., more than 10,000 Milwaukeeans marched solemnly behind the 37-year-old priest while more than 100 other cities in the land met violence, one of his bitterest critics in City Hall admitted grudgingly that Groppi's pleas for non violence could have been a telling factor.

Now, when the forces of change might move Father Groppi toward greater national prominence in the civil rights movement, he admits to misgivings about his future role.

"Black people have the right to lead their own revolution," the Roman Catholic priest said. "This is essential."

The muted dissent continues in the black community as it has from the beginning, with references to what Negro Alderman Orville Pitts calls the "peculiar chemistry" of Milwaukee that he said made the phenomenon possible in the first place.

"I'm not criticizing Father Groppi," said Pitts, who in April became the second member of his race ever elected to Milwaukee's Common Council. "The things he has done are very fine and I'm in full accord with them. But Father Groppi wouldn't last five minutes in Chicago, Detroit or Baltimore."

Still, if Milwaukee is an extraordinary city, where politicians ignore the traditions of socialism at their peril Father Groppi is an extraordinary white man, and an extraordinary priest. "The only white man the black man will recognize is one who has become black," said Michael Cullen, an Irish born ex-seminarian who, like Groppi, is immersed in the life of the Negro community. "Jim has done that. He bears witness daily with his body."

His influence has burgeoned with the struggle for Negro rights during two of the stormiest summers in Milwaukee's history.

Here in a city which an East Side hippie said had two things going for it — "beer and Groppi" — the priest continues to be a source of indignation as well as adulation.

"He doesn't love Negroes," bristled a ranking city official at the mention of Father Groppi's name. "He just hates white people."

But in the rectory of St. Boniface Church, where the priest is a co-administrator, a detail of "Commandos" — an elite guard of the Milwaukee Youth Council of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People — stands watch by the door.

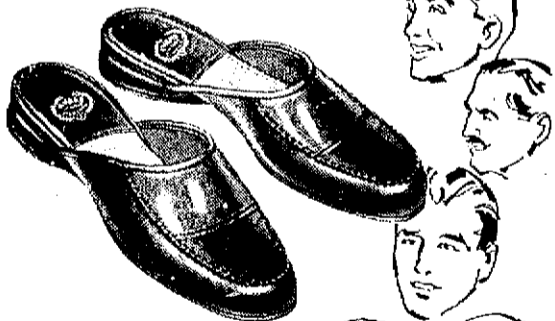

There is a touch of romanticism in their vigilance and a realistic concern for a man whose life has been threatened more than once. There also is a faith that their cause and the cause of the priest are one.

"He's black," said Wilbur Arms, 19, a Commando. "He suffers what we suffer."

To the community organizer, working among Milwaukee's 90,000 Negroes, the young men need more than an identity. They need a program. And in the area of program planning Father Groppi has failed. The organizer said.

Children hold benefit carnival for animal society

STROUDSBURG — In observance of Be Kind to Animal Week, a group of sixteen children held a carnival recently at 588 and 590 E. Broad Street, East Stroudsburg for the benefit of the Monroe County Society for the Prevention to Cruelty to Animals.

The various booths and activities included candy, soda, popcorn, popsticks, bean bag, fish pond, grab bag, penny toss, spin art, fortune telling, book stand and races. The carnival netted $25.10.

The children who put on the carnival were: Diane Dracos, Johnathan Dracos, Patricia McFadden, William McFadden, Kimbi Rich, Douglas Lambert, Susan Lambert, Kay Huffman, Carol Ann Huffman, Gina Petrucelli, Annette Petrucelli, Robin Burch, Thomas Lilli, Andrew Krueger, Scott Krueger, Gregory Beck.

Completely spontaneous on the part of the children, the S.P.C.A. only learned of the project the day before it was held. The S.P.C.A. has awarded each of the children a certificate of appreciation. "...For your enthusiastic assistance which has contributed to making the public more aware of the significance of Be Kind to Animals Week."

Remember when the only people who flew were daredevils?

They proved flying was feasible. Which gave someone an idea. Why couldn't down-to-earth people fly, too?

That someone started an airline with a single-engine plane. But it was slow service. Service that didn't fly you where you wanted to go, when you wanted to go.

So it had to go. Because someone else started an airline with twin-engine planes and you really started to go places.

Because you had a choice.

Today you can fly on four-engine jets. To almost any place in the world. At almost any time.

Yet some people think that a choice of five different airline flights to Chicago every hour is unnecessary. After all, you can only take one. But which one? The wide-screen movie flight? Or the champagne flight?

It just so happens that this competition for your plane tickets has made America's commercial air system the finest in the world. And it helps keep our country's economy sky-high.

Next time you call for a reservation, think about that.

Be choosy.
You've got a right.

Area student graduates from Duke

DURHAM, N.C. — Richard Hellmann, II, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hellmann, Clearview Lane, N. Fifth St., Stroudsburg was among the 1,500 students to graduate at Duke University Monday.

Hellmann received a bachelor of science degree.

Highlighting the program was a commencement address by Dr. Barnes Woodfall, associate provost at Duke.

Dr. James T. Cleland, dean of the Duke Chapel, was Sunday's Baccalaureate speaker.

County Teachers' pay set

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County School Board has adopted a new salary schedule for county employees.

During a meeting Monday in the courthouse, the school board adopted the following schedule:

Following is a breakdown on the five scale salary schedule including the minimum and maximum.

One — Standard certificate: $5,600 with $9,900 maximum reached in eight years.

Two — College certificate with less than special education certification: $5,900 with $8,300 maximum reached in eight years.

Three — College certificate with full education certification: $6,200 with $8,900 maximum reached in nine years.

Four — Masters degree and college certificate with less than full special education certification: $6,200 with $9,200 maximum reached in 10 years.

Five — Masters degree with full special education certification: $6,500 with $9,500 maximum reached in 10 years.

In other action, directors hired Mrs. Barbara A. Gordon of Blairstown, N.J. at an annual salary of $6,200 to succeed John Paronish who taught emotionally disturbed children.

Robert Campbell of Towanda was hired at $10,000 annually as psychologist and supervisor of special classes.

Mrs. Judith Berry, an Ohio State University graduate, was hired as speech therapist at a salary of $6,200 annually.

Sebring on Wednesday will present the articles of agreement to the Department of Public Instruction. County school districts agreed to the wording of the agreement. If the agreement is approved by the DPI, then the school districts have to vote on whether the school will officially be started.

Dr. Edward Magann said that during the annual school directors convention, school officials should be given a comprehensive review of the vocational technical school.

Magann said directors, if they had to vote today, would defeat the Vo-Tech proposal. Sebring agreed.

Antique show in Bethlehem

BETHLEHEM — The Alumnae Associations of Moravian College and Moravian Seminary for Girls are sponsoring a "Historic Bethlehem Antique Show and Sale in Archibald Johnston Hall, West Locust Street, Bethlehem.

The two day show will be held today and Thursday from 1 p.m. to 10 p.m.

Some 42 dealers will exhibit furniture, primitives, pattern and pressed glass, bottles, porcelain, dolls, books, coins and stamps, postcards, buttons, silver, lamps, power, case clocks, toys, jewelry, etc.

Proceeds will go to the libraries of the two institutions.

U.S. claims Koreans fly Red jets

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional testimony by Gen. Earle G. Wheeler suggests the United States now definitely knows that North Korean pilots have flown against U.S. planes in Vietnam.

The presence of North Korean airmen in North Vietnam was detected as early as the fall of 1965 but these were believed to be mainly advisers and instructors.

An indication the North Koreans also have engaged in air combat came when Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, testified in February before the House defense appropriations subcommittee. The testimony was released last week.

The subject was North Vietnam's air force, and Rep. Daniel J. Flood, D-Pa., asked the general: "What is the quality and nature of their fighter pilots?"

Wheeler: "Some of them, particularly the North Korean contingent, are quite good. Some of them are only fair, but in all honesty you have to admit they are getting better."

Military sources agreed with the conclusion that Wheeler meant the North Koreans have come up to oppose U.S. Air Force and Navy planes bombing in the Hanoi-Haiphong areas before the recent restrictions placed the cities off limits.

Wheeler went on to say the North Vietnam fighters are being trained by both the Soviet Union and Red China, but he said nothing further about the Koreans.

Sources said intelligence estimates are that there are from 30 to 50 North Korean pilots in North Vietnam.

At last count there were about 15 MIGs in North Vietnam with 40 to 50 others from the older MIG 15 and 17 versions to the newer MIG 21s based on Chinese territory.

Whomever they have been opposing, U.S. fliers have been distinctly superior in dogfighting with the Communists.

Since June 1965 American pilots have shot down 110 North Vietnam MIGs.

The North Vietnamese have downed only 10 U.S. planes.

Church meeting

GRISTENTOWN — A meeting of the Joint Boards of LaAnna, South Sterling and Henlock

Grove has been called for Friday at 8 p.m. at the Henlock Grove United Methodist Church. All members of the three local boards of the South

Sterling United Methodist Church are urged to attend.

Herbert Hoover was born in West Branch Iowa.

Bangor school budget hits $2.8 million

BANGOR — Bangor Area School Board has tentatively approved a budget of $2,836,150. This is an increase of $366,431 over the 1967-68 budget.

Receipts from local sources will come from a real estate tax of 35 mills, a $5 per capita tax and a $10 per capita tax, a one per cent earned income tax of which the school district will receive one half of the amount collected, and 100-mill occupation tax.

A rental increase of 10.78 per cent or $266,200 is noted in the budget.

The mandated teacher's salary increase is a 3.16 per cent hike or $78,800 in salaries.

A summary of the budget includes $1,021,768 revenue from local sources, $995,322 from the state, $29,000 from the federal government for a total of $2,836,150.

Disbursements will be $110,700 administration; $1,364,200, instruction; $6,000, attendance; $34,350, health services; $186,100, transportation;

$171,750, operation of plant; $140,050, fixed charges; $5,600 food service; $99,200, maintenance of plant; $13,600, student body activities; $29,500, capital outlay; $466,200, debt services, and $210, outgoing transfers for a total of $2,836,150 in disbursements.

The board authorized the secretary to advertise the budget and Edmund Turzco, solicitor, to prepare resolutions for adopting the budget, real estate tax, and millage.

Maryland charges inmate

STROUDSBURG — Trouble again hit John R. Peterson, an inmate at Monroe County Jail.

Peterson was served with five warrants Wednesday night in the jail by Constable John Bensley. All were signed by a State Trooper from Maryland and all were on information from officials of Hampshire Motor, Inc., Hyattsville, Md.

Each warrant was a bad check charge. The checks, five of them, totaled $550. Bail for the five charges totals $2,500.

The warrants will serve as detainers.

"Should Peterson reject extradition," Maj. Thomas S. Smith, Maryland State Police, said, "The State of Maryland will start legal procedures to have him (Peterson) returned to face charges in this state."

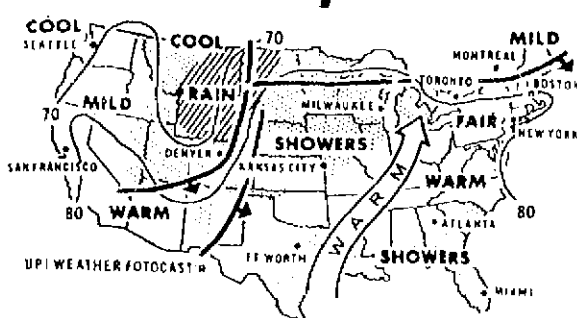

Bensley did not expect Peterson to waive extradition as Peterson has refused to answer all questions asked of him, even those to have a lawyer appointed for him by the court.

Peterson is charged in Monroe County with three worthless check counts and assault and battery.

Milton Lionheart, Holiday Inn innkeeper, placed one check charge for a $100 check Jack Cottle of Pocono Manor placed two charges for checks totaling $285.

The assault and battery charge was made by a Mount Pocono woman.

31 cars derailed at Shohola

SHOHOLA — A journal box on a box car Wednesday at 6:48 a.m. caused 31 cars of an Erie-Lackawanna Railroad train to derail near Shohola. There were no injuries reported.

The journal box, used to lubricate the wheel axles, froze and caused the derailment.

Seven of the cars went down on an embankment and came to a stop near the Delaware River, one car carrying a meal was ripped open by the crash and threw beef over the area, two other cars damaged the Shohola Grain and Feed building when the train crashed into it.

Service has been discontinued, but is expected to be resumed sometime today.

Railroad officials had no estimate of damage.

P.M. school board defers salary action

SWIFTWATER — The Pocono Mountain School Board referred action on increasing teachers' salaries to its policy and personnel committee after Theodore Jarret, president of the Pocono Mountain Education Assn., introduced statements contesting the board's action last month when it rescinded a $300 across the board salary increase.

Arguments continued briefly followed by several defeated

Stroud may hire Berkheimer

STROUDSBURG — Stroud Twp. Solicitor D. A. Hansen was authorized Wednesday night to negotiate a contract with H. A. Berkheimer Associates of Bangor for collection of the one per cent earned income tax.

The Bangor firm has been favored by both Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg School Districts for collection of the tax.

During a brief meeting, supervisors also unanimously hired Loren Doty of 311 N. Eighth St. as a part-time patrolman at a salary of $2.75 per hour. Ronald LaBar, who had been a special policeman, was also promoted as a part-time patrolman.

Part-time patrolmen in Stroud Twp. work a maximum 38 hours per week and a minimum of 35.

The appointment of Doty, brings the township police force to six.

Supervisors also granted permission to the Seventh Day Adventist Church to conduct revival meetings on land adjacent to the Giant Supermarket in the Stroud Shopping Center. The meetings will be from June 24 to July 25.

Township Secretary Harold Albert said the church will erect a 70-by-40 foot bubble tent.

The police report for the month of May, which was filed Wednesday night, showed that the police department received 101 complaints, investigated 14 accidents, had 37 traffic violations and four false burglar alarms, three of which were at Oiljak and one at the First Stroudsburg National Bank. The police car was driven 5,670 miles.

Firemen, during May, had one house and one car fire with a total 105 men answering alarms for the month.

Apartments planned for Stroudsburg

STROUDSBURG — A 32-unit $320,000 multiple building housing complex is being planned for Stroudsburg by the Fox Ridge Realty Corp., Stroudsburg, it was revealed Wednesday night during a meeting of the borough council.

Attorney Phillip H. Williams, solicitor for the firm, presented the plan to council in a move that prompted council to change the proposed area from an open to a multiple housing sector on the borough zoning map.

Council voted to amend the zoning map of the borough by changing the designation of that portion of the borough bounded by Foxtown Hill Road, Cherry Valley Road and the borough line from class O-1 to class R-3.

Speaking for the corporation were two New Jersey developers and contractors, Andrew Millan, Wyckoff, N. J., president of the Garwall Builders Inc., in Wyckoff, and Lawrence Earl, Stillwater, N. J., trading as William C. Earl and Sons, Stillwater.

Both are associated with Fox Ridge Realty.

According to Williams the four to six two-story buildings would be constructed on a 33.98-acre site in Stroudsburg and Stroud Township.

He said the units would be in the $130 per month rent range and the $320,000 estimated cost only included actual construction.

Stroudsburg Mayor Joseph Small pointed out that this type housing facility has been recommended by "our own planning commission," and endorsed the proposal.

Council is expected to issue a permit to allow further development of the proposed project.

In other action, council voted to adopt a resolution for an 80-20 percentage split with the Stroudsburg School District in sharing anticipated one-per cent earned income tax revenue.

motions. The board continued with other business matters, adjourned and convened in a special session to reconsider the salary schedule. No action was taken Wednesday night. A special meeting was called by President James Price to be held Wednesday, June 12.

Jarret, speaking for the members of the PMEA, also present at the meeting said, "Our organization is angered by the Pocono Mountain School Board in its action to rescind the $300 increase."

The board decided to take this action pending final enactment of the new state salary bill.

Jarret argued that the school district got $38,000 from the state to be used for salaries in the school's budget and just because a new salary bill is under consideration is no justification for dropping the $300 increase.

"State funds must be added to money already appropriated in the school budget and should not be a replacement for the budgeted increase," Jarret said.

"The starting salary with the $300 is still only $5,400; this is not competitive. All the other school districts in the county are now starting with a salary at $5,700 and we will not be competitive with these," Jarret said.

Dr. Anthony Bolyn, board member, asked Jarret if he was dissatisfied with the entire new salary schedule.

Jarret said, "No, we do have a fairly adequate salary schedule. We have a good start."

A motion was defeated to delay action on the salary schedule until Governor Shafer has taken action on the new salary bill establishing an immediate $300 increase.

A second motion was then defeated to approve the salary schedule as recommended.

No further discussion was made on the salary question during the remaining session of the meeting which considered the report.

The following resignations were accepted:

Janet W. Haney, elementary teacher, effective Aug. 31; Sonya K. Lewis, elementary teacher, effective close of school year; Mary K. Bull, library clerk, effective June 28.

The following new faculty members were appointed:

James Lupini, vocational-agriculture instructor, effective Aug. 1, at a salary of $7,600 for a 12-month contract.

Also, the following elementary teachers were hired: Georgine J. Daily, Susan R. Fretz, and Nancy Forney.

The 80-per cent would go to the school district this year with the stipulation that the share percentage will be re-negotiated by council at the end of this year.

Council also approved a resolution appointing H. A. Berkheimer Associates, Bangor, as administrators for the earned income tax in the borough.

Council also voted to authorize solicitor George Robinson to draw up an ordinance that would grant councilmen a $300 per year raise to $800, effective July 1.

Council approved the appointment of Richard Phillips, Stroudsburg, as operator of the borough's sewage treatment plant at a salary of $6,201 per year to replace Floyd E. Kresge who resigned due to ill health.

Borough officers were authorized to file a petition for a sanitary landfill site proposed in a three-municipality coverage area.

A brief but lively discussion was sparked when it was revealed by borough manager Harold Snyder that Stroudsburg would only receive $10,000 in liquid fuel allocations from the county commissioners.

Stroudsburg had requested $14,000 for their projects, the same amount as was received last year.

Mayor Small remarked that the sum should prompt objection from council in light of the fact that East Stroudsburg received $12,000 this year in liquid fuel allocations from the county.

Councilman Warren Loney said that "We asked for $14,000 and we should get $14,000."

No further action was taken on the matter.

It was decided to advertise for bids for a new borough fire truck in the $35,000-$40,000 price range.

Albert said bid notices would be sent out as well as specifications.

STROUDSBURG — Units participating in the Cootie Parade Saturday night will form at 8 p.m. at Lehigh Valley Dairy in East Stroudsburg and the first division will start for Stroudsburg promptly at 9 p.m., Robert Hachtman, grand marshal, said Wednesday night.

Parade route will be down N. Courtland St. to Washington, across the interboro bridge to Kane St., then to Main St. and up Main St. to Tenth St. where the parade will end.

Marching units will compete for awards as they pass the reviewing and judging stand in front of the old Montgomery Ward building.

In the first division will be police cars from the boroughs, Pup Tent 47 Color Guard and cars with guests in them.

The guests will be Elmer D. Christine, past commander Department of Pennsylvania VFW, representing Norman P. MacFadden, Department Commander; the mayors of the four boroughs in Monroe County, Monroe County Commissioners, Judge Williams, and assistant district attorney Philip Santucci.

Marching in the first division behind the cars will be: Keystone Grenadiers Color Guard and drum and bugle corps; the department and National officers attending the activities, main body of Cooties marching, mass colors of all Cootie Pup Tents, cars for Cooties too old to march, Department Cootie Queen, Honorary Queen and then all other Pup Tent Queens.

This division will form on King St. and Robert Knott and Vince Biondo will be the division marshals.

Second division will consist of VFW Post 32 from Lansdale with 30 majorettes, Chestman Drum and Bugle Junior Corps, Marshalls Creek Fire Company, Tobyhanna Army Depot float, and the Shirellettes.

Marshall for this division is Jack Riggs. The division will form on Maple Ave.

In the third division will be the color guard from Evans-Blitz American Legion Post 922, Canadensis; Broadcasters Junior Drum Corps, Stroud Twp. Fire Co., and the Phoebe Belles.

Floyd Halloway is division marshal and the division forms at the entrance of the high school.

The fourth division will form on Vine Street with Elwood Smith as marshal.

In the division will be Bangor VFW Post color guard, the firing squad from the Bangor VFW post, Silver Reavers Junior Drum Corps, Bristol Post 6, and Terchorn Twirlettes and a float.

Robert Lambert is marshal for the fifth division which will form on the street next to Smith's Rentals.

In this division will be VFW Junior Drum Corps from Darby and its 80 Youth Activities Section, Mount Pocono Fire Co., the 40 & 8 Locomotive and all units wishing to enter the parade at last minute's notice.

Engineers optimistic about Tocks benefits

By Mary Berry
Record Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The Army Corps of Engineers has defended the feasibility of the Tocks Island Reservoir on the grounds that estimates of damage to the New Jersey Oyster industry are unreliable.

In closed hearings before the House Public Works Appropriations Sub-Committee earlier this year, Corps representatives charged that an allegation by the United States Fish and Wildlife Service that the dam would radically reduce the Oyster crop was "highly questionable."

In a confidential Committee staff report, it was stated that the Fish and Wildlife Service believed the Dam would cause six million dollars worth of damage to the Oysters annually. The same report gave the Corps' estimate of the damage as $513,000.

Brig. Gen. Francis P. Koisch, Division Engineer with the Corps, told members of the Sub-Committee, "I think there is really only one fact available with regard to these Oysters; that is, that the production of Oysters currently is 24,000 bushels a year."

However, The Fish and Wildlife Service estimate is based upon the maximum possible production of Oysters under the most favorable conditions. Their estimate is that one million bushels of Oysters would be lost annually. They value a bushel of Oysters at six dollars.

The Oysters would be damaged by a type of Oyster drill which thrives only in very saline water. The Fish and Wildlife Service is concerned that not enough fresh water would pass through the proposed Dam to flush the salinity out of the Delaware river in the vicinity of Trenton where the Oyster beds would be located.

Additional aspects

Corps representatives were questioned about other aspects of the Tocks Island Project which have caused costs to soar from an estimated $80.3 million in January 1959 to $203 million today. The Corps is asking for an appropriation of four million dollars for fiscal 1969, most of which would be used for land acquisition. Because of rising costs and possible damage to the Oyster industry, it was feared that the amount of benefits per dollar invested in the Project might sink beneath one to one which is considered the lowest possible cost-benefit ratio for a Public Works Project.

Nearly $15 million of the cost increase was due to foundation problems. However, Koisch told the Sub-Committee that the Corps had determined that the location currently selected for the Dam would be a safe place to construct it.

Over $16 million of the increased cost was due to increases in flood pool elevation. Koisch said that this included funds to buy additional land that would be necessary. About $37.5 million of the increase was due to rising land prices. However, the Brigadier General said that he thought the Corps had effectively put an end to land speculation in the area.

Another $8.2 million was attributed to what the staff report called "A reappraisal of land costs" this includes the acquisition of additional land to compensate for the loss of land for wildlife. The Corps has allowed 450 acres for this, but the Fish and Wildlife Service has asked for 2,400 acres. Koisch said that the Corps was not at all convinced that this additional acreage was necessary.

Another possible cost increase item is recreation facilities requested by the Park Service. The authorizing legislation specifies that $18 million is to be spent on recreation facilities in the area. However, the Park Service would like to spend $45 million, according to a master plan they have developed.

The Corps had estimated $12 million for recreation. The need for additional facilities is based upon an estimate by the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation and the Park Service that 14 million people will visit the Delaware Water Gap National Recreation Area annually.

Koisch pointed out that increases in Recreation use would "make the project look a lot better from a benefit-cost ratio standpoint." He indicated that the ratio could actually be improved two dollars for every one dollar invested.

Increase probable

"It appears at this point that practically anything that can happen with this Project will tend to increase the benefit-cost ratio," he said. "Whether it is additional recreation, additional water supply, additional power, anything will tend to increase the benefit cost ratio. I believe that we have it down now at its very lowest ebb."

The Corps was also asked about a proposal by private utilities companies to develop a pumped storage power plant at Tocks Island. Koisch told the Sub-Committee that, in his view, the authorizing legislation did not allow for the creation of such a facility.

This sort of power plant would mean the destruction of Sunfish Pond, a glacial pond on top of the Kittatinny Ridge. Koisch told the Sub-Committee that, in his view, it made sense to use this pond as a pumped storage reservoir.

The Subcommittee also asked Koisch whether the Corps had acquired any land to date. The matter of land acquisition came up in an earlier hearing before the Interior Appropriations Subcommittee. Koisch said that the Corps had not yet acquired any land, although it had made agreements for 38 tracts at a cost of about $298,888. He said this was because of a misunderstanding between the Corps and the Committee over how much land could be acquired in advance. He was assured that the Committee would consider the matter.

In spite of obstacles, it appears likely that the Committee will report out a bill calling for the full $4 million appropriation for Tocks Island some time next week. A source close to the committee said that there was little chance the Tocks Island appropriation would be cut. However, it is anyone's guess what will happen to this appropriation on the floor. Congress is under pressure to cut Domestic spending drastically.

Conferees struggle with Urban Crisis

POCONO MANOR — A detailed analysis of the Urban Crisis, cures for which Sen. Robert F. Kennedy pushed so often, began on a somber note Wednesday in Pocono Manor.

More than 500 persons, who deal constantly with the ever-mounting urban problems, arrived at the Pocono Manor Tuesday night and Wednesday for a three-day comprehensive analysis on the Urban Crisis.

Sponsored by the Pennsylvania Department of Community Affairs, the conference features a long list of officials prominent in the study of the Urban Crisis.

The first day session officially began at 10:30 a.m. with a welcome address by Community Affairs Secretary Joseph W. Barr Jr.

The two and one-half hour opening session was marred, however, over the concern of Senator Kennedy's condition. Conferees from time to time left the conference rooms to read newspapers or to listen to latest developments on the radio.

Whitney M. Young Jr., executive director of the National Urban League, is one of the conference speakers.

Other notable speakers are William L. Ratsky, president of the National Assn. of Housing and Redevelopment and chairman of Gov. Shafer's Housing Task Force and Leland Hazard, chairman of Gov. Shafer's transportation committee.

Gov. Shafer was slated to be the luncheon speaker Wednesday, but cancelled the engagement due to the attempted assassination of Sen. Kennedy.

Sessions throughout this week include such topics as county and regional planning, development of community recreational facilities, social changes and urban unrest, the urban mass transit dilemma, housing and redevelopment and the increasing need for greater inter-governmental cooperation.

Local officials throughout the Commonwealth are being given the opportunity to attend and air their feelings concerning the needs, desire and activities of local government.

The climax of the conference will feature a speech by Young during the Friday luncheon. He will discuss the Urban Crisis and its relationship to the upsurge of "Black Power" with a glimpse into the Long Hot Summer of 1968.

Monroe County Commissioners as well as staff members of the Tocks Island Regional Advisory Council attended Wednesday's session.

IBW given state loan for $105,000

STROUDSBURG — Pocono Mountain Industries, Inc., the industrial arm of the Chamber of Commerce, Wednesday was notified by the Pennsylvania Industrial Development Authority in Harrisburg that a $105,000 loan had tentatively been approved.

Ralph Reppert, president of PMI, last night said, "The loan was made by Pocono Mountain Industry in behalf of International Boiler Works in East Stroudsburg."

"The money will be used by IBW to expand its present plant and in particular the research and development department of the firm."

When completed the addition will create 35 additional jobs and produce an annual payroll of $2,500,000.

Awards given to E-burg students

EAST STROUDSBURG — Award Day Exercises were held in East Stroudsburg Area Senior High School on Tuesday with the following presentations:

To Gary Huffman, the Junior class good citizenship award, presented by Mrs. Cummings A. Platt; Judy Wertheiser, sophomore honor student, by Mrs. Martha Martin; Susan Farmer, D.A.R. American History award, by Cummings A. Platt; Babe Ruth Good Sportsmanship awards to Sandra Takasz and John Hood presented by Jack Kist; Jean Turn, Tom Waring athletic award, by Kist.

Music awards went to Miss Nancy Joy Koch for chorus and Robert Zellner for band.

New schedule set for rodeos

MOUNT PCONO — The Pocono Farms Horse Center postponed Wednesday's scheduled rodeo because of a lack of suitable weather in which to prepare for the event.

Snyder earns BS degree

STROUDSBURG — Russell B. Snyder, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell G. Snyder, Stroudsburg, R.D. 4, will be graduated Sunday from Worcester Polytechnic Institute, Worcester, Mass. with a B.S. degree in chemical engineering.

A 1964 graduate of Ridley Park High School, Snyder remained on the team's list during most of his four years and was a member of Phi Gamma Delta fraternity while at college.

Snyder was enrolled in the ROTC program and will be commissioned.

However, the rodeo schedule will begin on Wednesday, June 19, and continue each Wednesday for the balance of the summer.

Mrs. Lois Zugel, a dental hygienist in the Stroudsburg Area School District, has a patient "open up wide" during a check Wednesday in the Morey School.

Stroudsburg dental program helps deprived children

STROUDSBURG — The dental health program for care rendered by local dentists directly to these pupils.

"The dental program consists of cleaning teeth, applying fluoride, receiving dental care instruction, education in proper nutrition and a general awareness of good oral health. All children of cooperating families have been included in the opportunity to receive this assistance, Wells said.

Two students are honored

BLAKESLEE — A farewell dinner for two area exchange students will be given at the Sportsman Restaurant on Route 940, Blakeslee by the Top-O-Pocono Rotary Club.

They are:

Julio Schinder from Argentina, who is the first foreign student to graduate from the Pocono Mountain Junior-Senior High School and to participate in the football and track teams of the school.

Alfred Kerick from Blakeslee, who will represent the Rotary in Chile.

Principal speaker will be Dr. Les Jordan, originator of the International Student Exchange program.

Supers hear routine agenda

REEDERS — Jackson Twp. Supervisors met Wednesday night in Reeders and conducted routine business. It was reported by Sterling Miller, board chairman.

Major Burr C. McFarlane, who retired from military service at Tobyhanna Army Depot, is shown with his wife, and children, Christina, being held, Margaret and John. The family resides in Clarks Summit.

Major retires from military during Tobyhanna ceremony

TOBYHANNA — A 42-year-old major ended his military career of 24 years at Tobyhanna Army Depot.

He is Maj. Burr C. McFarlane of 416 Highland Ave., Clarks Summit, the depot's director for Maintenance the past six months.

At his retirement ceremony, conducted by Commanding Officer Col. Paul R. Poulin, Major McFarlane was awarded an Oak Leaf Cluster to his previously won Army Commendation Medal.

The citation, accompanying the award, reads in part: "He consistently demonstrated outstanding qualities of ingenuity, integrity and professional competence. His enthusiasm in accepting new tasks won for him the deepest respect and admiration of his associates."

He received the first award of the Army Commendation Medal for his work as detachment executive officer while serving with a Missile Master unit near Buffalo, N. Y. in 1961.

Additional Honors
His other decorations include the Bronze Star Medal and Vietnamese Service Medal.

McFarlane entered the Army in 1944 as a private, and was commissioned a second lieutenant eight years later after completing Officer Candidate School at Fort Monmouth, N.J.

Of his 24 Army years, eight were spent in overseas assignments. He had three tours of duty in Korea, and also served in France and Vietnam.

Among those present at the retirement ceremony were Mrs. McFarlane, the former Sue Sung of Korea, and the couple's three children: John, 12; Margaret, 10; and Christina, 4.

Mt. Pocono sub-office to operate

STROUDSBURG — A sub-office of the Bureau of Employment Security Office in Stroudsburg was opened on Monday in Mount Pocono.

The Mount Pocono branch office is located in the Borough Building, Pocono Boulevard, and will be open from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

John P. Dougherty, manager of the Stroudsburg office, explained the purpose of the Mount Pocono sub-office is to provide a convenient job information and referral service to local residents of Mount Pocono, Pocono Summit, Long Pond, Pocono Pines, Tobyhanna, Blakeslee and surrounding area.

Many of these people contact two or three employers and if not hired, return to their homes. By providing a central point for job information an applicant can be referred to hotels in need of his particular skill.

Dougherty said that no unemployment compensation claims will be taken at Mount Pocono. Persons desiring to file such claims are to report to the Stroudsburg Office located at 408 Main St., Stroudsburg.

Police equipment

SEOUL (AP) — South Korea's 30,000-man national police force will receive American equipment valued at $5 million, including 500 vehicles, grenade launchers and rifles, under an agreement signed here. The aim is to improve the effectiveness of the police against infiltrators from North Korea.

Stone tools found

HAVANA (AP) — Cuban archeologists, reporting on exploration of a cave on the island's western tip, said they found stone tools, dishes made from shells and more than 300 other relics of an aboriginal Indian tribe believed to have lived more than 4,000 years ago.

One man war for Israeli Parliament

TEL AVIV (AP) — The Arabs' favorite Israeli is a lanky maverick member of Israel's parliament who wages a one-man war against the country's Establishment.

Uri Avneri, a pragmatic 44-year-old publisher, makes his own headlines by gunning for the Jews' sacred cows and preaching a "new deal" for the Arabs, Israel's enemies in three wars.

In the last 18 years, the rebel legislator has aroused such passion he has been beaten up a dozen times by angry Jews. A mob once broke both his hands.

His spicy weekly magazine Haolam Hazeh, or This World, prints his views alongside exposes and pictures of nudes. The magazine's offices have been bombing three times. Many attempts have been made to ban the magazine, but all have failed.

Avneri calls for better understanding of the Arabs and for Israeli efforts to improve this country's image in Europe by mixing more with its Middle East neighbors in an effort to bring peace to the region.

"He'd be dangerous if he ever got into power," said a friend. "But a lot of what he says is right."

There's little chance Avneri ever will reach a position of authority. He's the only member of his left-wing New Force party in the Knesset, Israel's parliament.

His election on his "new deal" ticket caused a sensation. No one was more surprised than Avneri when 14, 125 Arabs and young Israeli intellectuals voted him in three years ago.

"I wouldn't vote for Avneri for any other reason than we need someone like him in the Knesset to keep the old fogies on their toes," said law student Shlomo Cohen.

Avneri came to Israel from Germany 34 years ago. In 1950 he became a marked man when he wrote a book titled "The Other Side of the Medal" reporting brutality by Jews in the Arab-Jewish war of 1948.

Since then, Avneri has been Israel's severest critic and constantly embarrassed the government by his questions and sniping at the "outdated" clique of older members who helped found the state 20 years ago.

His biggest fight, however, is for the Arabs. His party backs a group of Israelis and Arabs who want a semiautonomous Palestinian state federated with Israel.

"The only way to peace," he says, "is to concede the importance of Arab nationalism and attempt to coexist with it in the Middle East. The first step is to give the Palestinians a homeland in the occupied west bank of Jordan."

Family with tragedy-filled history

The clan

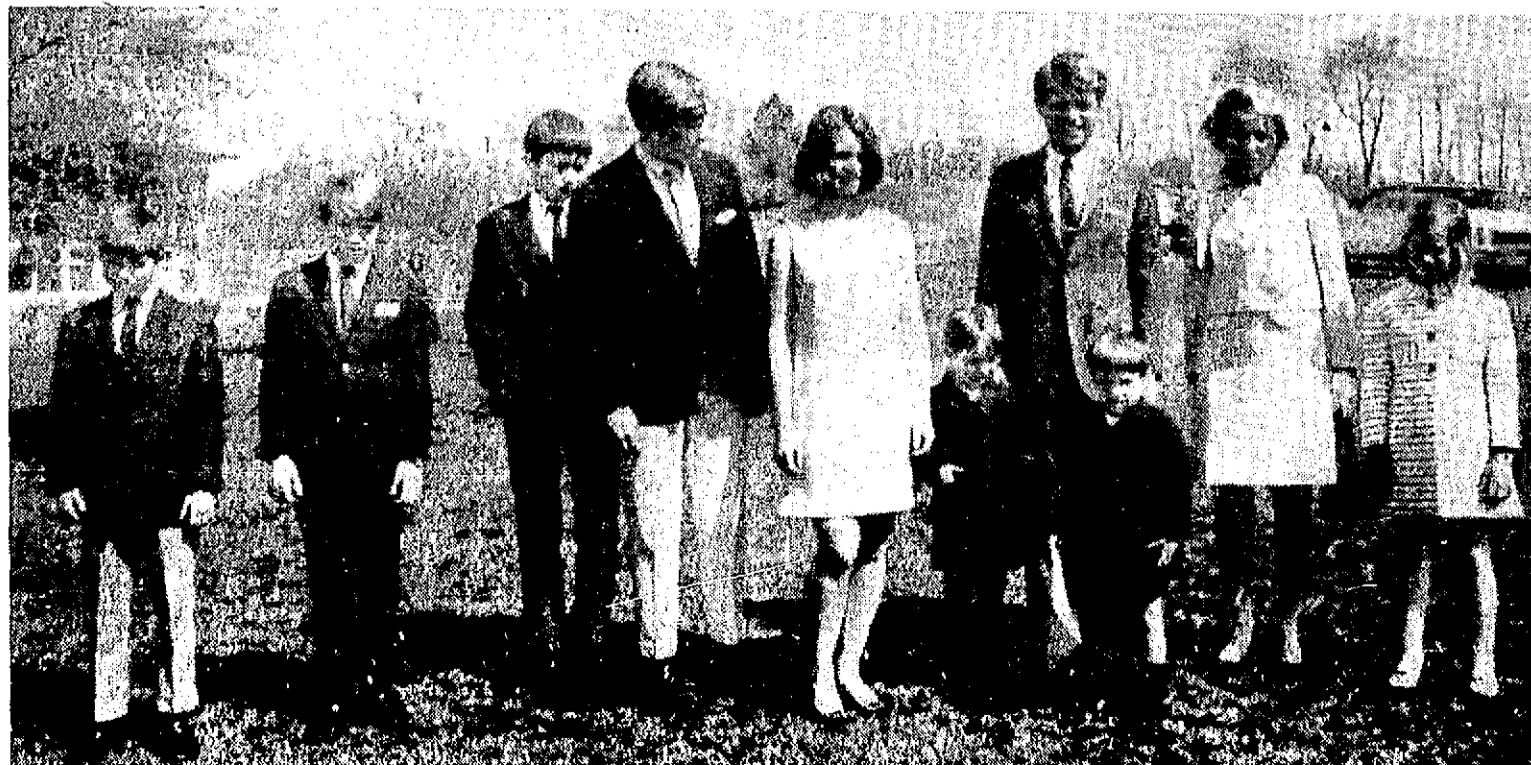

Tragedy has run through the Kennedy family in the last 25 years. First blow was the wartime death of the eldest son, Joseph P. Kennedy Jr. (UL). In 1948, Kathleen (T 2nd L), widow of the Marquis of Hartington, was killed in a plane crash. Another sister, Rosemary (T 2nd R), has been mentally retarded from birth. In 1961, Joseph P. Kennedy Sr. (UR) suffered a stroke and has been an invalid since. In 1963, President John F. Kennedy (LL) was assassinated. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy (B 2nd L) came near death in a plane crash in 1964. In 1966, Robert F. Kennedy's brother-in-law, George Skakel (B 2nd R) died in a plane crash. RFK (LR) was shot Wednesday in Los Angeles.

Grieving son

A saddened Joseph Kennedy, 16-year-old son of Sen. Kennedy, leaves the Kennedy compound in Hyannis, Mass., Wednesday after coming there from school near Boston. Young Kennedy later flew to Los Angeles to be with his father.

His contribution to humanity

During happier days, RFK poses with his family on their farm at McLean, Va. Above are eight of his ten children and the senator's wife, Ethel, who is expecting her 11th child.

The woman who has borne the brunt of the Kennedy misfortunes is mother Rose, shown leaving for mass Wednesday morning in Hyannis, Mass., after hearing on television that her son was shot and in critical condition.

Alone with God

Mrs. Rose Kennedy followed her usual custom Wednesday. She went to early morning mass in St. Francis Xavier in Hyannis, Mass. This mass was dedicated to the recovery of her critically wounded son.

All types pay homage to senator

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A steady stream of persons, young and old, well-to-do and poor visited St. John's the Evangelist Roman Catholic Church in center city Philadelphia Wednesday, offering prayers for the wounded Sen. Robert Kennedy.

One was Mrs. Mary McCarthy, Irish born and 65. She was downtown shopping and stopped at the church.

"Although my name's McCarthy, I'm for Kennedy all the way. I love the Kennedys," she said.

"I knew it. I felt it. They didn't want his brother, so why should they want him? What is this world coming to?"

"I couldn't believe it," said Greg Martin, 19, a sophomore at the University of Pittsburgh.

"Two brothers in the same family."

"I don't know why they shot him," said Martin. "He wasn't even elected yet."

Silver-haired Mrs. Sam Hartman, a Pittsburgh law firm accountant, said, "I think it's just too damn bad. It makes me sad that people in this country can't just live and let live."

IN LOVING memory of our son and brother, Philip J. Fabbro, aged 21, who passed away June 8, 1967, one year ago today. The stars are shining brightly Upon a lonely grave. And in it lies a precious one We loved, but could not save. Sad and so deeply loved by all A bitter grief a shock severe It was to part with one so dear We often sit and think of you And speak of how you died. To think you could not say Good-bye. Before you closed your eyes. For all of us you did your part Oh God, grant you eternal rest Each dawn and day brings thought of you. Each evening a prayer And in the hearts that loved you so You always will be there. God gave us strength to face the shock And courage to face the loss And what it means to miss you Only that will ever know Sadly missed by Mom, Dad, Sister

SPRING TUNE-

Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — Have a cool rumor: Duke Ellington's Concerts of Sacred Music may play the Vatican. . . New York Police P.B.A. head John Casse remarrried (his first wife died) and moved to Rockland County, far from the long hot summer. . . "21" club's Chuck Anderson (he's also Commissioner of the N.Y. Youth Board) is in Lutheran Hospital for surgery. . . They have orders to keep it out of the papers but New York cops are picking up mini-muggers in Central Park who carry crime-size knives; one 14-year-old packed a gun when frisked. . . They rustle bicycles from other little girls and boys.

Weekends in that great greenery, cops tell us, are plagued by junkies, queers, perverts and unfunny-city types. . . At the Bolshoi Ballet, two of three no doubt gents swished in wearing pastel Nehru-jackets with all the jewelry; the third wore straight conventional clothes—and diamond earrings.

Vivian Vance makes no bones about it—admits she had a facelift; most of some 3,000 women who wrote in after they heard her face it on "Girl Talk" were under 40! . . . The Carlyle Hotel where Presidents used to stay ordered its entire staff to stop giving "any" info to the press; haw. . . Eddie Fisher and Kim Novak!!!

Julie Andrews isn't satisfied singing, dancing and acting—now she's taking piano lessons. . . The Food and Drug Administration is scrutinizing weight-watchers' dietetic desserts. . . Peter Townsend wed Karen Astley. . . Roger Corman who filmed Peter Fonda in "The Trip" trash is trying to make a movie out of the Columbia University tragedy.

Next bistro trying the site of the old Basin Street which brought fiscal grief and sorrow to previous owners will be dubbed "Nepenthe"; means no grief or sorrow. . . Wait. . . Hedy Lamarr's genius for headlines will get the Ecstasy girl and her manager B. Sackett publicity. . . DeGaulle's riots even affected France's Mother's Day—it was switched to June 16 from May 26.

Actress Hildegrade Neff (Mrs. David Cameron) just became a first-time mama at 42. . . This is progress? Stanley Holloway who once did "Hamlet" is making a movie with Herman's Hermits. . . Broadway loan shark saw the license plate 241 (car of a minor state official) and said he'd like it on his $7,500 sports car. . . "Good advertising," he growled. . . The mayor and police commission bewail the shortage of cops but some of the best and most decorated are out of the critical crime areas—driving towaway trucks. . . Bill Cosby next may write and perform a comedy routine about losing $60,000 at Harrah's on Lake Tahoe.

Mae West is 75 but the beans who come up and see her around to the Hollywood hotspots are great-grandson age: such as Adrian Young, all-American footballer. . . The turtle-neck-jewelry fad for fellas is too hot not to cool down and the next sartorial put-on is being planned.

Revlon boss Charles Revson's Park Ave. triplex-pad (two years in the decorating) has five kitchens. . . Pentagon poop says W.A.F. Col. Jeanne M. Holm may be the first distaff U.S. Air Force general.

At "The Detective" premiere—her pop Horace McMahon is featured—Missy McMahon, 20, admitted she's a chip off the old ham and will join Dartmouth's stock troupe this summer. . . The fashion plate, anyway saucer, doing the frantic Charleston in deep-burgundy jacket and black tie at the Gaslight Club like a veritable Johnny Downs was no less than Sir Rockwell Graziano, eminent tress-pie-an.

The "If He Hollers, Let Him Go" movie boasts another no doubt cinematic revolution—the first "completely nude love scene with Negro actors, Raymond St. Jacques and Barbara McNair; all of Barbara, just St. Jacques' back. . . Someone please ask Eddie Fisher maybe why Kim Novak left Hollywood screening of her first movie in years. "Legend of Lylah Clare," ranting and upset; hope it wasn't at her acting.

In "The Thomas Crown Affair," Faye Dunaway says her scene with Steve McQueen playing chess is the "sexiest I've ever made on the screen". . . The Sheraton Hotel Corp. likes the looks of the Miami Beach Fontainebleau.

Poland seeking freedom

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Poland's intellectual community has appealed for less censorship and more freedom of cultural expression.

Writers, actors, theater directors and students registered their concern that the development of Polish culture is being harmed by the stiff controls of Wladyslaw Gomulka's Communist government.

The indications are that their plans will fall on deaf ears.

The latest round in the battle between controls and freedom of expression was set off by the closing of a classical Polish play Jan. 31.

The play is "Dziady", or Forefather's Eve, a long and complicated saga by 19th century poet Adam Mickiewicz about Poland's suffering under Russian tsarist rule. It is standard reading in schools and regularly performed on the stage.

For the present season at Warsaw's National Theater, director Kazimierz Dejmek fashioned a trim, spicy production that was approved by government censors and drew praise from many quarters, including Communists, Western diplomats and even the controlled press.

It was being too well received. Lines with anti-Russian import were drawing raucous applause—even, according to one theatergoer, from a visiting Soviet drama group.

The government considers the Soviet Union as its closest ally and the reaction was apparently becoming an embarrassment. "Dziady" was ordered closed by the Ministry of Culture.

The official explanation was that an organized audience was indulging in "hooligan excesses." The production, once given official approval, was labeled "petty political."

One hears from Poles, including Communists, that partly first secretary Gomulka has little love for intellectuals.

Closed-door literary trials, where the state prosecution makes effective use of a Stalinist law on written material "deemed harmful to the interests of the Polish state," show the sensitivity of his regime to controversial subjects.

Last month a critic was sentenced to three years for writing a musical spoof about prominent Poles—without once mentioning their names. The spoof was never published or performed but merely taped and played at private parties.

Tourist war flares between Turkey, Greece

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — Turkey, which nearly came to blows with Greece over Cyprus last year, has declared "war" on its neighbor—this time over tourism.

Turkey's minister of tourism, Nihat Kursat, didn't mention any names when he explained Turkey's new special tourist exchange rate for hard currency.

But he said the move was taken to "compete with neighboring countries which offer cut-rate facilities to tourists."

Officials concede the main target: Greece.

Greece in normal times has been attracting about one million tourists a year, who supply more than $100 million in hard currency.

Turkey, with a comparable variety of attractions, including Roman and Greek ruins and fun-in-the-sun facilities on three coastlines, drew 400,000 tourists in 1967. They left less than $20 million.

Turkey's artificial exchange rate has been a problem. While the rate is pegged at $ to $1, the black market rate hovers around 12 to $1.

State employment rises by 60,000 jobs in month

STROUDSBURG — Employment in Pennsylvania registered a gain of approximately 60,000 jobs from March to April. This job increase exceeded the normal seasonal expectation and brought the total up to 4,609,600, the highest employment total on record for any April, Secretary of Labor and Industry John K. Tabor announced.

Appreciable seasonal gains were noted in contract construction, retail trade and the service and miscellaneous group. Most other industries recorded favorable movements.

Tabor called attention to the favorable long-term employment gains, pointing out that the April total was 46,300

Variety new spice of life for television

NEW YORK (AP) — The time seems not far off when the hurried television viewer can scurry across the hectic hours of life like Liza crossing the ice, hopping from variety show to variety show.

For variety currently is the spice of TV life, no matter what the network press department announcements say about "meaningful drama." When the current season started last September, there were nine glorious prime-time hours of variety programs, stretching from Ed Sullivan on Sundays to Jackie Gleason on Saturdays, with the Carol Burnett, Red Skelton, Jerry Lewises, Dean Martin in between.

The midseason birth rate was high. Out of six evening replacements of fallen series, one-half were variety shows.

Television also developed a couple of indigenous entertainment forms after the first star-host—probably Garry Moore—put a desk in front of a camera and, from a vantage point behind it introduced assorted performers and talkers that ranged from Swiss bell-ringers to authors on publication day.

The programs that followed the form scarcely fit the tradition of the old-fashioned vaudeville show. But "Today," "Tonight," "The Joey Bishop Show," "The Merv Griffin Show," "The Mike Douglas Show," "The Pat Boone Show" and "The Woody Woodbury Show" that start rolling into the living rooms—or master bedrooms—at 7 a.m. and wind up at 1 a.m. certainly fit the definition of the variety show closer than they do that of any other category.

Television programmers, obviously impressed by the ratings and enthusiasm generated by programs such as "The Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour" and now "Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In," apparently believe that if viewers respond happily to a liberal helping of one TV dish, they develop an insatiable appetite for it.

Now singer John Gary has become the host of a syndicated variety show taped in a Miami Beach night club. Steve Allen soon will try his hand at the same game again.

And, ABC on March 4 will sweep out 90 minutes of its current morning programming—a couple of limping game shows, and reruns of "The Donna Reed Show" and replace them with a variety show called "This Morning" starring Dick Cavett, 31, a soft-voiced, quick-witted comedian of youthful mien and Ivy League background.

And if "This Morning" draws the matinee audience, it is a cinch that the rival networks will dispatch those lovely, lucrative reruns of "The Dick Van Dyke Show," and "The Andy Griffith Show," and those low-budgeted game shows, and we will soon see sprouting even more morning, afternoon and night variety shows.

Hassle over warplane

More delay, higher spending looming in future

WASHINGTON (AP) — More delay and higher spending loom in the controversial and costly effort launched six years ago with the idea of producing, at a bargain, a tactical warplane that would serve both the Air Force and the Navy.

Congress has already invested $5.3 billion in the program, originally dubbed the TFX. But it is on the verge of shooting down the Navy's version of the plane, now called the F111.

And three of eight Air Force versions of the swinging supersonic jet literally went down in late March and April during the plane's first exposure to combat.

Despite these latest blows to the joint program fattered and pursued by former Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, principally as a money-saving venture, work continues on F111 development, test and production lines.

At the same time, testimony recently made public by the Senate Armed Services Committee includes these harbingers of new delay and more cost:

—McNamara, who has since resigned, said the Air Force supply of the F111A would be built up "somewhat more slowly than planned last year in order to permit a more orderly phase-in of the D model. The F111D, with the superior Mark II avionics now under development, promises to provide a fourfold improvement in navigational accuracy over the F111A, plus a better all-weather, air-to-ground weapon delivery accuracy and an all-weather, radar-guided, air-to-ground weapon delivery accuracy and an all-weather, radar-guided, air-to-air missile capability."

—Navy spokesmen testified that designing a substitute for their F111B would mean a delay in getting a suitable missile-toting, carrier-based interceptor to the fleet. Length of the delay was classified. Secretary of the Navy Paul R. Ignatius also said scrapping the F111B would raise costs of the F111A. But the committee told the Navy to go ahead and figure out what it would need to substitute for the F111B.

—Gen. John P. McConnell, Air Force chief of staff, testified that phaseout of B52 bombers has been slowed "to maintain the total bomber force at an effective level over a period in which the F111 will be procured at a slower rate than was originally planned." The F111 is a strategic bomber version of the F111. It should not be confused with the Navy's F111B.

The over-all F111 program has produced since 1962 a jungle of figures, claims and accusations.

Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., chairman of a subcommittee that has investigated the F111 program for five years, said the Pentagon first estimated it could acquire 1,700 planes for $8 billion, including $711 million for research. Now, he said, the estimate is $12 billion or more for 1,300 planes, including $2 billion in research.

The Pentagon will not say how many F111s it intends to eventually buy.

A newly declassified Pentagon summary shows that in budgets through June 30, 1968, Congress has approved $5.3 billion in spending for the program, including $2.1 billion for research and $3.2 billion for production.

Through Jan. 31, the Department of Defense had signed agreements covering $4.5 billion and had already issued checks for $2.9 billion.

Roughly $7 of every $10 in each of these categories has been allotted to the Air Force's F111A.

Current flyaway cost of an F111A is $6.76 million according to Defense Department statistics provided this year to the Senate Armed Services Committee. This does not include the cost of such necessities as spare parts, training simulators and ground support equipment.

Secretary of the Navy Ignatius testified that flyaway cost for the F111B is $8.1 million.

But, he told the committee: "These two programs share the contractor's facilities, and if the Navy plane were terminated, there would be an upward effect on the cost of the Air Force air-planes, and we are developing these figures."

The present production order awarded to General Dynamics Corp. of Fort Worth, Tex., the prime contractor, is for 493 planes at a cost of $1.82 billion. The last plane is to be delivered in 1971. Original end-of-run target date was late 1970. Only 24 of the 493 are to be Navy F111Bs.

The $1.82 billion contract does not include such items as engines purchased by the government from another contractor.

McNamara claimed at the start of the program that using one basic plane for both services would save $1 billion through commonality—use of many identical systems and parts in both planes. Scrapping of the Navy version, as now contemplated, presumably would nullify many of these claimed savings.

Central characteristic of the F111 is its swinging design. Extension of the wings permits slow speeds and short landings. The wings are swung back along the fuselage for supersonic flight.

Versions of the plane differ, however, in such areas as weight, wing length, nose configuration and fuselage length. Commonality between the Navy and Air Force planes is about 70 per cent, the Air Force said, although in 1962 it was estimated the planes could be 80 per cent common.

Asked what an alternate plane designed solely for the Navy would cost, Secretary of the Navy Ignatius said: "I am not able at this time to answer that part of the question that deals with the cost of an alternative aircraft."

The Defense Department has already issued $376.4 million in F111B contracts and $342.8 million in contracts for the Phoenix missile the Navy plane is to carry. An alternate plane also would be armed with the Phoenix, according to present plans.

By way of price comparison, the Air Force is paying $2.4 million flyaway cost for the F4E fighter. This is the latest model of the F4 series, first approved for production in 1955. The F4 comprises the majority of Air Force tactical fighter forces, and also is a Navy plane.

Aside from costs, the planes produced by the program get a varied reaction. The Air Force says the F111A satisfies its needs but concedes it does not match the original goals for the craft.

The bidding:

Opening lead—king of clubs.

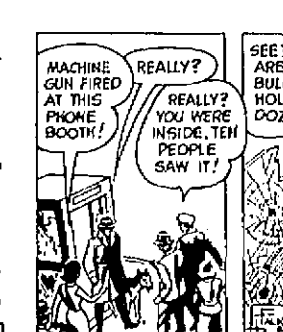

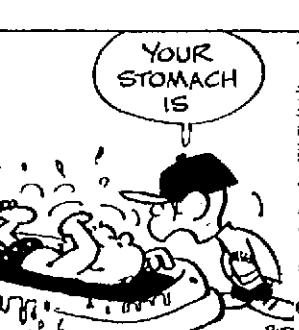

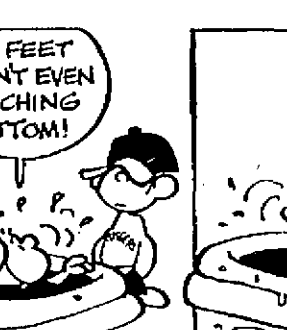

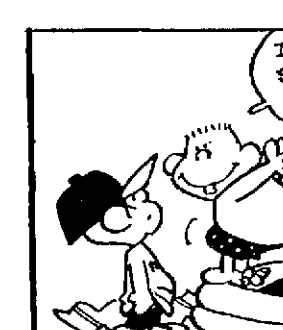

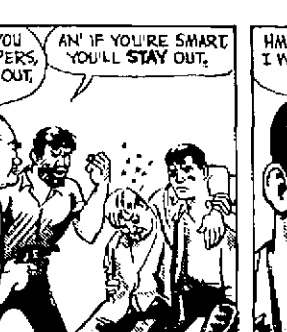

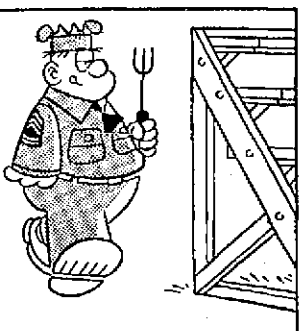

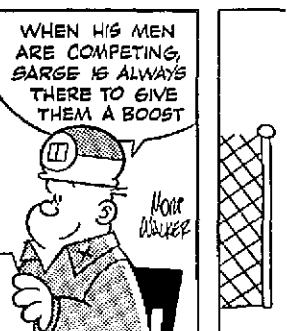

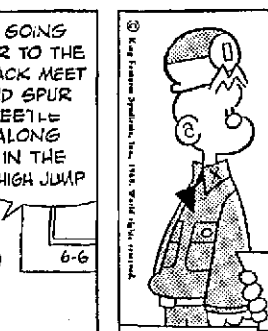

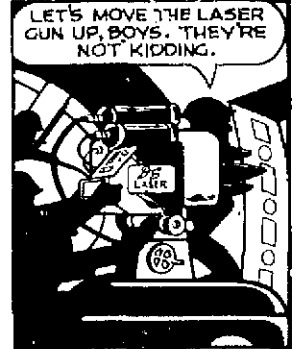

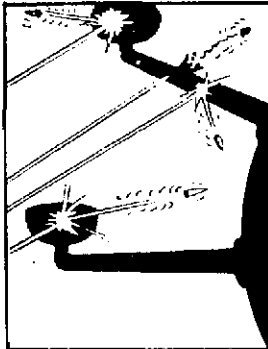

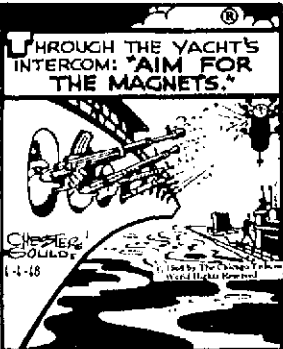

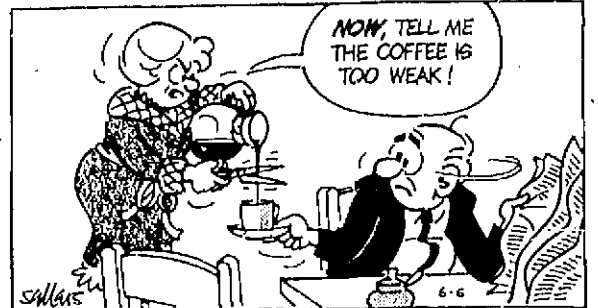

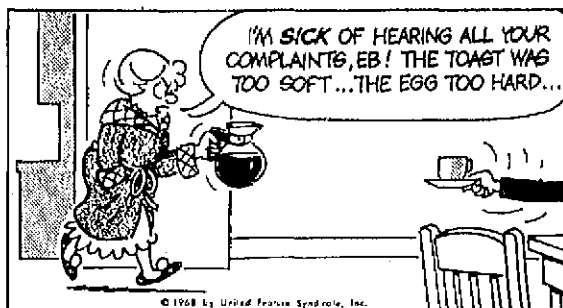

Let's say you're declarer at four spades and West leads the king of clubs. Your possible losers are two hearts, a diamond and a club, but there is some chance of avoiding a heart loser if the diamonds are divided 3-3, or failing that, if East has the ace of hearts.

Your best play at trick one is to duck the king of clubs. West may not know what to do next, and if he either shifts to a heart or continues with a low club (which you would allow to ride to the jack), your difficulties are solved at once.

However, West shifts to a trump, which you win in your hand with the nine. You now lead the jack of clubs. When West covers with the queen, you let him win the trick.

This unusual maneuver is not due to a sudden burst of generosity on your part; it is simply an avoidance play designed to prevent East from taking the lead later on with a diamond to return a heart through your king. By permitting West to win the club jack with the queen, you are merely exchanging a sure diamond loser for a club loser.

The great advantage of ducking the queen is that you can now afford to test for a 3-3 diamond division without running the risk of East's taking the lead with a diamond. Regardless of what West plays next, you are home. Let's say he continues with a . You discard a diamond on the ace, cash the ace of trumps and A-K of diamonds, and ruff a diamond. When the suit turns out to be divided 3-3 you enter dummy with a trump and discard a heart on the seven of diamonds to make the contract. Note that without the avoidance play, you would go down one.

Ann Landers

Mischief maker

Dear Ann Landers: "First Rate Secretary" sounds like a Fourth Rate Mischief Maker who has more than a casual interest in her boss. Why didn't you clobber her?

I also work for a "fascinating guy" — brilliant, charming and competent, but the man is married which means he is off limits. It doesn't bother me if his wife phones him 40 times a day. If the boss finds the calls annoying he can tell her. What's more, I wouldn't mind if she came to the office six times a week. It's up to her husband to say something if he doesn't want her here.

I'm surprised you didn't recognize the secretary's criticism as a snide attack on the wife by a female who has designs on her boss.

SEEN'EM ALL
Dear All: I agree — a secretary should not tell the boss' wife that her calls are annoying or her office visits too frequent. And I said so.

Dear Ann Landers: My 14-year-old daughter is lazy, irresponsible, untruthful and has a terrible temper. She will not listen to me and I don't know what she's going to say or do from one minute to the next.

The girl has been begging me to let her spend the summer with her maternal grandmother. The transportation would cost $300 and, although we could get the money together, it would not be easy. The grandmother is a nice person and gets along well with the girl. Should we let her go, even though she has shown no signs that she is able to conduct herself in a lady-like manner?

— B.B.H.

Dear B.B.H.: Let the girl go. You two need a vacation from one another. A summer away from home might do the daughter a world of good — and it would be helpful for you, too.

Cultural exchange real bargain

NEW YORK (AP) — As a theater venture, Gert von Gontard considers cultural exchange a real bargain.

"This tour," says the man responsible for sending a noted troupe on a 30,000-mile trek across America and around the world, "costs about $500,000. For that amount, think what you might get on Broadway—a musical that might run one night."

His stress on the point is significant, for $200,000 of the budget is his own money. In an era when producers seek angels to back artistic philanthropy or form corporate complexes for commercial purpose, Von Gontard is a do-it-yourself loner.

The high point of his aesthetic activities that began in a little New York playhouse 22 years ago has been the current tour of the Vienna Burgtheater which was founded in 1742 but never previously ventured out of Europe.

"Marvelous" is his summation of its itinerant accomplishments under his trusteeship. In Israel, where the trip began, ovals greeted the company at Haifa, Tel Aviv and Jerusalem. Precedent was broken in Paris as a foreign language sounded for the first time from the stage of the Comedie Francaise, the oldest of all Western repertoires.

During three weeks in New York, to a chorus of critical raves, the company played to 40,000 spectators. Then a jump to Los Angeles, followed by stands in Osaka and Tokyo. The tour winds up next week in Luxembourg, Brussels and Antwerp.

"You have to feel your way around, step by step," says the promoter of the intricate planning and logistics involved in moving 100 performers and technicians along with elaborate equipment. For in addition to setting up the trip and closing the expense gap between Austrian government support—about $150,000—anticipated box-office revenue—about the same—and total costs, Von Gontard presided personally over operational details.

A combination of artistic enthusiasm and hard-nosed business intensity, the 62-year-old impresario put on his first stage presentation here in 1954, with stress on the Germanic aspects of the theater which have remained his chief interest. The choice was natural.

"Even my name to American ears sounds like something out of a Strauss operetta," he jests. Born in Berlin, his father was a prominent industrialist and his mother was a daughter of the American brewing family that made St. Louis famous.

Von Gontard's theatrical taste developed early. He quit a journalistic career when the Nazis rose to power and arrived here in 1933, becoming an assistant to Max Reinhardt at his drama school in Los Angeles.

That experience enabled him after the war to launch classic revivals ranging from "Faust" to "The Master Builder" with such eminents as Herbert Berghof, Elisabeth Bergner, Dolly Haas, Uta Hagen and Oscar Karlweis.

"That first season," he recalls, "I was everything from stage manager to makeup man.

It cost me about $5,000."

He purses his lips in a fleeting smile and stares intently through the bulging lenses of spectacles that minimize his optical handicap.

"That's a far cry from the amount I've spent since." As interest in theatrical exchange developed, Von Gontard shifted from ad hoc production to importing some of Germany's best known theater ensembles to his new homeland.

In 1961 the noted Gustaf Grundgens arrived with the Hamburg players, and subsequently New York audiences saw companies from Dusseldorf, West Berlin and Bavaria. Then Von Gontard determined on Operation Vienna.

"In this work, you always must live about two years in the future," he declares.

In 1970 Von Gontard expects to take the New York City Opera company on circuit of London, Paris, Vienna, Munich, Hamburg and Berlin.

The other prime concern is an American tour for Israel's Habimah actors.

His reason for such sustained activity is brief.

"Because I want to," he says, like a Hillary explaining why he must scale Everest.

Business offered addresses students

SWIFTWATER — Monday, Joseph A. Zampano, comptroller of Business Supplies Corporation of America, addressed a group of business students who are presently enrolled in the bookkeeping classes at the Pocono Mountain Junior-Senior High School, Swiftwater.

Mr. Zampano stressed the value of their bookkeeping training in helping students to make a decision concerning their future vocations.

Water Gap new sewage permit fee

DELAWARE WATER GAP — The Delaware Water Gap Borough Council Monday night unanimously adopted a $20 sewage permit for municipal residents under a recently adopted state sewage regulation.

Council solicitor Harry Lee said that the majority of municipalities were charging from $15 to $20 for the permits. He said that the borough's intention of collecting the newly passed ordinance will be advertised.

In other business council authorized a $500 expenditure to repair a borough truck and discussed the possibility of installing a traffic light at the entrance gate to Ronson Inc. and Front St.

The problem of traffic tieups at the work shift change drew different comments from ex-present mayor, and chief of police Charles Lepper.

Lepper said that in his opinion a law enforcement officer on the scene often was the cause of tieups and sometimes slowed traffic. Lepper suggested that the area be "left on its own" to see if the situation continued.

Decker disagreed claiming that he patrolled the area as a policeman and that it should continue to be patrolled.

Mrs. Patricia Smith

Area girl graduates at Centre

DANVILLE, KY. — Mrs. Patricia Ponder Smith, of Stroudsburg received the bachelor of arts degree from Centre College, Danville, Ky. at the college's 145th graduation exercises.

The graduation address was given by Dr. Edgar Finley Shannon, Jr., president of the University of Virginia.

Mrs. Smith is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Seldon Ponder, Stroudsburg, and is a graduate of Stroudsburg High School with the class of 1964. At Centre she served as a Junior Sponsor.

Centre College is a liberal arts, co-educational college with a selective admissions policy.

The college is now constructing a $2,000,000 science building and a new men's residence hall to be named Nevill Hall.

Recently completed was Boles Natatorium housing an AAU size swimming pool and attendant facilities.

Red Cross to honor James Gould

TOBYHANNA — The Monroe County Chapter of Red Cross will honor the memory of James Gould at the chapter's 51st annual dinner meeting Thursday at Sun 'n' Ski Restaurant, Scotrun.

Gould, who was killed in a car crash near his hometown of Effort last June 17, served as a director of the chapter from July 1956 and was its chairman from July 1, 1964 to June 30, 1966.

The citation will take note of Gould's "significant contributions to humanity" through the years.

Main speaker
Principal speaker at the dinner meeting will be Major Marcellus Durham, director of administration at Tobyhanna Army Depot. He will show slides and discuss his experiences as a provost marshal in Vietnam.

Also scheduled is the election of officers and directors.

Area residents who wish to attend may call local Red Cross headquarters, 509 Scott St., Stroudsburg.

Drop counts against three

STROUDSBURG — Charges of larceny against three New Jersey men were dropped Monday by Mrs. Florence Scheinbaum, co-owner of Charcoal Hearth on Rt. 611 in Stroud Twp.

Mrs. Scheinbaum had made the charges against Frederick Cole, 23, 47 Front St., Belvidere; Richard C. Allen, 28, Glen Garden, and Raymond S. George, 25, Columbia.

The charges were dropped at a hearing before Mrs. Ruth Miller, Stroud Twp. justice of the peace.

Fish commission member named

HARRISBURG — Gov. Raymond Shifert Tuesday nominated Raymond M. Williams, East Bangor, for appointment to the State Fish Commission.

Williams' term expires this year. Also nominated by the governor were Gerard J. Adams of Hawley and Calvin J. Kern of Egypt.

Father, daughter still guarded

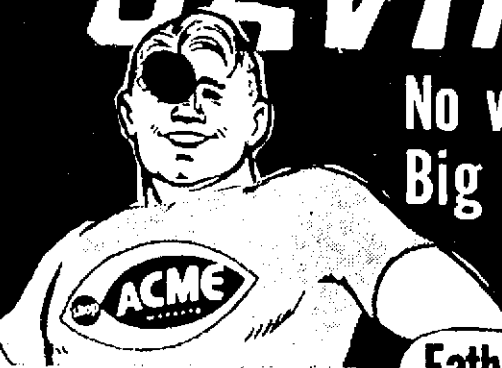

EAST STROUDSBURG — Howard A. Beers, 36, and his eight year-old daughter, Cheryl, of Saylorsburg R. D. 1, remain in guarded condition in General Hospital of Monroe County.

The father and daughter were injured Saturday in a car-motorcycle accident in Hamilton Twp.
